Chester Man Dies In Holdup Attempt

Midland Area Entry Intruders Get $800 In Taking Big Safe

IMPROVISED CARPENTRY repaired the hole in the wall of a Smiths Ferry area service station battered by burglars who wheeled out a big safe containing about $800 early today. E. B. Molter, manager, made the repairs to the station, which is operated by Petroleum Solvents Co. of Pennsylvania Ave. The entry was discovered at 5:05 a.m. today at the station on Route 68 midway between Smiths Ferry and Midland.

A heavy safe containing approximately $800 was hauled bodily out of the Petrosol Service Station on the Midland-East Liverpool Rd. early today by determined burglars who battered a hole through the wall when they found the strongbox was too large to be taken out through the door.

Asst. Chief M. G. Haydin of the Ohioville Borough police said the burglary was discovered at 5:05 this morning by E. B. Molter, manager of the station, which is owned by the Petroleum Solvents Co. of Pennsylvania.

The safe, weighing 1,200 to 1,400 pounds, apparently was loaded onto a truck just outside the station, the assistant chief said.

He said the intruders forced entry by breaking through a side door. But when they found the door was too small to be used to move the safe out, they used wrecking bars and other tools to smash a hole through the wall, he related.

The burglary took place in an interval of an hour and a half shortly before dawn today. The assistant chief said the station was checked last by his force at 3:32 a. m.

The initial investigation indicated nothing else was missing, Haydin said. He was unable to find any tire tracks in the area outside. The area around the pumps has a blacktopped surface and the rain that fell early this morning effectively removed any tracks that might have been made by the vehicle that was used to haul away the safe, Haydin said.

The station is located approximately a quarter mile east of Smiths Ferry — about midway between Midland and Smiths Ferry on Route 68.

The station is a one-room frame structure which sits on the north side of the highway. The building is approximately 50 yards off the highway.

The assistant chief said the missing safe is about 3½ feet high and approximately 18 inches wide and deep.

He said the intruders apparently brought their own tools to

A 25-year-old Weirton man was expected to be arraigned today in Midland on charges stemming from an abortive attempt to rob an elderly Midland coin collector Saturday night in which a 38-year-old Chester man, an alleged accomplice, was wounded fatally during a struggle for the numismatist's gun.

David L. Graham of 205 St. Anne Way, Weirton, was scheduled to be taken before Justice of the Peace Paul McGeehan in Midland on a charge of attempted armed robbery in the bizarre case unraveled Sunday by East Liverpool police headed by Lt. William E. McDaniel during an investigation of the shooting of Stanley D. (Stutz) Simcox, 441 Indiana Ave., Chester.

Simcox, a former East Liverpool resident and one-time operator of Stutz Bar on Carolina Ave. in Chester, died at 5:45 p.m. yesterday at City Hospital from complications after being shot twice during the attempted holdup, authorities said.

Shot By Man At Midland

A third man, a material witness, reportedly is being held at city jail but neither Midland officers nor local police would confirm the report or discuss his possible role in the case.

Graham made a written statement to John A. Krzton, chief of Beaver County detectives, and Sgt. Vincent D'Itri of the Midland police department last night at police headquarters after voluntarily surrendering about 3 p.m. yesterday.

He indicated he will waive extradition, the two officers said. He was held to appear before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff today in the extradition hearing.

However, extradition proceedings against Graham had not been started shortly before noon.

Chester police said Graham is the son of William C. Graham of Chester, Hancock County commissioner.

Dr. William A. Kolozsi of Salem, Columbiana County coroner, said he will delay issuing a ruling in the death of Simcox until the investigation has been completed.

"Obviously, there has been a homicide, but whether it was justifiable will depend on the outcome of the investigation," the coroner said.

Dr. Kolozsi said the former pottery worker died from peritonitis, an infection which set in after he had been shot.

The coroner said Simcox had been shot in the left arm and upper left chest. One bullet penetrated a lung, nicked his stomach and lodged in his back, he explained.

In an autopsy at City Hospital, a .38-caliber slug was recovered intact and fragments of another bullet were found, Dr. Kolozsi said.

Midland police were advised of the attempted robbery at 10 p.m. Saturday by Nick Derramo, operator of a Midland Ave. restaurant, at the request of Walter Dardzinski, 38 2nd St., a collector of old and rare coins. There is no phone in the Dardzinski home, police said.

Dardzinski told Patrolman William Monac that two men came to his home on the pretext of being interested in coins and then told him it was a hold-up. Dardzinski said there was a struggle for his gun and he fired three times and believed he might have hit one of the robbers.

However, the pair took his gun and fled, Officer Monac was told.

The officer said Dardzinski, about 68, has a gun permit and customarily answers his door with a gun in his hand.

Midland police remained unaware of the alleged role of Graham and Simcox until Graham reportedly admitted the bungled robbery while being questioned by Lt. McDaniel.

The Midland department was notified and Chief Ed Steff, Sgt. D'Itri and Patrolman Monac came to East Liverpool to participate in the interrogation. Detective Krzton was summoned by the Midland officers.

Here's the way the bizarre case unfolded in East Liverpool, according to Lt. McDaniel:

At 1:09 a.m. Sunday, ambulance attendants from the Dawson Funeral Home radioed police headquarters to have Lt. McDaniel meet them at the hospital on an urgent call. The officer and the ambulance arrived (Turn to SHOOTING, Page 2)

GOP Votes Against Any 'Extremism'

Party Leaders Act On Proposal; Birch Society Not Blamed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders approved a resolution today advising party members to reject membership "in any radical or extremist organization."

The measure did not name the John Birch Society.

The Republican Coordinating Committee acted swiftly to endorse the stand of GOP National Chairman Ray C. Bliss.

A spokesman said the committee unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that Republicans should reject membership

"in any radical or extremist organization, including any which attempt to use the Republican party for its own ends or any which seeks to undermine the basic principles of American freedom and constitutional government."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, proposed the resolution. Dirksen said he acted for himself and House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, who had earlier called for a specific denunciation of the Birch society, seconded the Dirksen resolution.

Smylie reportedly decided not to press for action on a resolution naming the Birch society because he doubted there were enough votes to adopt it.

The question of what—if anything—to do about the Birch society had been considered a top problem for the GOP leaders.

If they don't formally repudiate the conservative outfit, one party chieftain said, they will be accused of equivocation.

The showdown comes at a session of the 28-member Republican Coordinating Committee, created to draft party policy. Barry Goldwater, a key man in the controversy over how to handle the Birch Society question, will not be on hand. His wife is hospitalized in Phoenix, after undergoing surgery.

A spokesman said Goldwater's position on the Birch (Turn to GOP, Page 3)

Bechuanaland Slated To Get Independence

LOBATSI, Bechuanaland (AP) — Bechuanaland, the British protectorate in southern Africa, will become a republic within the British Commonwealth on gaining its independence next September. Prime Minister Seretse Khama said today.

Outlining the territory's proposed new constitution to his government, Khama said the country would change its name to Botswana.

According to the last census, the territory has slightly more than 3,000 whites and nearly 300,000 non-whites.

Viet Fighting Dwindles

Weekend Action Costs Communists Heavy Toll

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Major ground fighting in Viet Nam petered out today after a half dozen weekend actions cost the Communists a heavy toll. U.S. spokesmen said the Viet Cong may be pulling back to their jungle hideouts to recover.

With partially clearing skies, U.S. warplanes resumed raids on North Viet Nam after a two-day lull blamed on bad weather.

Air Force F105 Thunderchief and F4C Phantom jets blasted two bridges northeast of Dien Bien Phu, set a five-building military complex in the same area aflame and cratered the approaches to another bridge on a main highway 130 miles northwest of Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman said.

Navy pilots claimed another bridge, two storage areas and four anti-aircraft sites 14 miles northwest of the coastal town of Dong Hoi, he added.

In the battle area south of Da Nang, U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops hunted a Viet Cong regiment on the sixth day of Operation Harvest Moon but the foe refused to show himself.

Since the fighting began around a valley 20 miles south of Da Nang, the Leathernecks counted 198 Viet Cong killed, 76 captured and 287 suspects detained, Marine spokesmen said.

Officers regarded the lull warily. "I don't think the major fighting has started," said the U.S. Marine commander in Viet Nam, Maj. Gen. Lewis Walt.

U.S. officials took considerable satisfaction at the surrender of a 22-man Viet Cong platoon, with 11 weapons, to men of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade at Vo Dat, 60 miles northeast of Saigon. They counted the defection as a major achievement for U.S. intelligence and psychological warfare experts and Vietnamese national police who negotiated the surrender.

It was described as the biggest Viet Cong defection in many months.

In the Marine action, the Leathernecks took over the high ground near the rice hamlet of Que Son. Air Force B52s from Guam pummeled the suspected lair of a Communist regiment in the area, 350 miles northeast of Saigon, for the second time since the operation began last Wednesday.

Walt said the attempt to encircle and wipe out the force of 2,000 hard-core Communist troops had been launched to forestall an attack on the Marine beachhead at Chu Lai, 52 miles southeast of Da Nang.

"The Viet Cong were planning to attack our positions and we felt we should attack first and destroy their capability," he said.

However, the Viet Cong struck first and inflicted heavy casualties on two South Vietnamese battalions before the Marines got into the action.

As the eight-engine bombers roared back toward Guam, more than 2,000 miles away, the Marines pushed forward to assess the results of the saturation bombing but made only light contact with the Viet Cong, U. S. officers said.

Rendezvous Planned For Wednesday

Plug Foils Attempt To Launch Schirra, Stafford On Sunday

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 astronauts beat a smooth, record-shattering trail through space today with eyes on a Wednesday date with Gemini 6.

The newly crowned kings of manned space flight, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., sped nine days deep into their 14-day journey dressed "the only way to fly" — in nothing but underwear.

Gemini 7 entered its 132nd orbit at 8:24 a.m. (EST).

"This is Gemini 7, your friendly target vehicle, standing by," Borman messaged earth after the U.S. Sunday space spectacular stalled in a cloud of pink-tinted rocket exhaust.

The Gemini 6 pilots, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, saw their 103,000-mile space hunt and rendezvous with Gemini 7 foiled before they left the launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla. A false signal shut off the launch rocket's engines.

Already - tired launch crews worked around the clock today to ready Gemini 6 for another pursuit try at 8:37 a.m. (EST) Wednesday. It can be fired as late as Sunday.

Borman and Lovell got orders to conserve fuel to insure them enough power to maintain their spacecraft's attitude toward the end of their space voyage. This meant an abbreviated experiment schedule and much drifting flight.

Light conversation flowed between the spacecraft and earth as ground controllers attempted to boost the spacemen's spirits after the sudden scrub of the Gemini 6 launch.

A spacecraft radio was tuned to Sunday afternoon professional football games.

If it had not been for cool, expert, split-second decisions by Schirra and Stafford in the face of potential danger — and maybe death — the chance at a

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP) — Two East German army sergeants swam the flooding Elbe River border during the night and asked for asylum in West Germany. West German authorities announced.

Seven East German workers also escaped across the mine-infested northern section of the Iron Curtain border during the past 24 hours, authorities said.

Ends Viet Combat Duty Welcome, Honors Given Carrier 'Independence'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The aircraft carrier Independence came home from war today to an emotional welcome that bespoke pride in her mission and offered solace for her losses.

She tied up in the rain and fog at her naval base pier minus 18 men and 16 planes that had sailed with her to Viet Nam waters seven months ago.

Thousands of wives, children and parents streamed aboard the big ship for a just-before-Christmas reunion. The joy of the ship's return all but blanked out the near tragedy that struck Sunday when a ruptured fuel tank of a plane leaving the carrier for its shore base spewed a sheet of flame along the flight deck.

Just before the families boarded the ship an official welcome was extended by naval, state and city officials who had landed aboard the carrier in Hampton Roads in helicopters.

The Navy unit commendation was presented to the ship and her air wing by Vice Adm. Waldemar F. A. Wendt, deputy commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, for exceptionally meritorious service during her five months of combat operations in the South China Sea.

Surges of homecoming happiness pulsed through the ship's 4-repeat attempt would have vanished.

"They're cleared for takeoff," Mission Control advised Gemini 7, passing overhead shortly before the 9:54 a.m. liftoff time.

"Adios," control told Schirra and Stafford.

Right on schedule, the countdown proceeded.

"... 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, ignition."

Exhaust boiled beneath the mighty vehicle, but the rocket didn't move.

"Shutdown," announced Mission Control with scarcely a pause.

By this time, under these conditions, Schirra and Stafford were close to making a decision to eject and be thrown clear of the smoldering rocket, live with fuel. But they just gripped their ejection rings. Then the fuel pressure started slowly decreasing; the crisis disappeared.

Had they ejected — much like pilots do from jet aircraft — the damage to the capsule and seats might have been too severe to repair before the end of the Gemini 7 flight.

Gemini 6's launch vehicle probably would have flown successfully. Inspectors determined that the shutdown was caused by a false signal emitted because a two-inch plug fell prematurely from the base of the rocket.

The plug carries electrical signals between the blockhouse and certain systems, including the malfunctioning detection system. When it disconnected, the signals ceased and an automatic command shut down the engines.

To prepare for the second attempt, technicians removed all fuel from the rocket and began cleaning the system. The brief ignition did not damage the pad and apparently Gemini 6 was not damaged.

Schirra, the command pilot, was praised for the decision not to eject. "Mighty cool head there, Wally," Mission Control said. "We appreciate it."

But Schirra, 42, the oldest of the astronauts, had little to say. "Those things happen. It could happen to anyone. No one was hurt."

The Gemini 6 crew shrugged off its second disappointment in attempting a rendezvous. On Oct. 25, Schirra and Stafford were only 42 minutes from liftoff when their target—an Agena rocket—failed to achieve orbit and exploded.

Rendezvous between two orbiting space vehicles is a vital step in the U.S. plan to send men on round trips to the moon. Astronauts who descend to the lunar surface must return in their landing craft to the mothership in orbit around the moon.

President Johnson watched the misfire on television, then expressed disappointment that Gemini 6 did not go off as expected. But he praised the calm pair of astronauts and their space agency colleagues.

"With the world watching," Johnson said from his Texas ranch, "they acted with remarkable courage in the face of danger and potential disaster."

After the launch attempt, the orbiting Gemini 7 crew performed a few experiments but first made sure their fellow astronauts were safe.

"Have they got Tom and Wally out of the spacecraft yet," Borman asked with a note of concern shortly after the shutdown.

"Negative," Mission Control told them. "They're still in, but everything is safe."

To reassure Borman and Lovell that Gemini 6 still intended to hunt them down in space, Schirra asked this message be relayed:

"Tell Frank and Jim that we still want to come up and see them."

Borman and Lovell became the world space endurance record holders at 1:26 p.m. Sunday, breaking the mark of 190 hours, 56 minutes set by the Gemini 5 pilots, Air Force Lt. Col. L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr.

"Sorry to disturb your lunch, but we have a message here we think you'd be interested in," Mission Control said.

"Roger, go ahead," replied Lovell.

"We're coming up on a special time here, about five seconds. Mark, here," Mission Control announced. "You just exceeded the world's manned space flight endurance record."

"And by sheer coincidence we are pleased to inform you that you are cleared to choose whatever suit configuration you would like. Keep us informed."

Hallelujah! Lovell exclaimed. "Mine's coming off."

Borman took his off last Friday. Lovell earlier flew four days without his.

NATO Sets Parley Over French Role

PARIS (AP) — Foreign and defense ministers of the Atlantic Alliance countries gathered here today to discuss an integrated nuclear force and France's part in the alliance.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk on his arrival told newsmen he didn't "expect anything surprising out of this meeting," which opens Tuesday at the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rusk said, "I think my stay in Paris will be useful to discuss with other ministers the questions in our minds."

U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara also arrived for the conference.

Ministers of the 15 NATO nations will tackle these problems:

—France's opposition to integration of NATO military forces.

—Proposals for an integrated nuclear force that would give West Germany more say in nuclear strategy.

—Indications from Moscow that progress could be made on German reunification, access to West Berlin or a Viet Nam peace conference if the integrated nuclear force idea is dropped.

Observers said trading the nuclear integration proposals for Soviet concessions on any of the above goals could lead to an East-West agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Diplomats believe Red China's explosion of a nuclear device has made the Russians more anxious to achieve a non-proliferation agreement with the Americans and the British.

The main stumbling block to such an agreement is Moscow's opposition to the U. S. and British proposals for NATO nuclear integration. The Soviets say the proposals would give West Germany indirect access to nuclear weapons.

The American proposal for a multilateral nuclear force calls for a fleet of surface ships armed with nuclear weapons and manned by mixed crews from the participating nations.

Britain's proposal calls for an Atlantic nuclear force integrating nuclear-armed units from the NATO nations, but the units would retain their national identity. The British plan emphasizes air force units and possibly submarines.

Neither proposal seems to have much chance of being adopted.

The Four Freedoms termed essential by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in a speech to Congress Jan. 6, 1941, were freedom of speech and expression, from want and freedom from freedom of worship, freedom fear.

ed at the hospital at the same time, 1:11 a.m.

The ambulance attendants told the officer they had been called to Avondale St. and had picked up Simcox, who had been shot.

The victim told Lt. McDaniel he had been wounded on Lincoln Ave., north of Smith St., about two hours previously.

McDaniel immediately launched an investigation and sent men to both the Avondale and Lincoln areas to question residents and attempt to find out what had happened.

Officers also started to check on Simcox' whereabouts Saturday night and whether he had any companions.

The investigation linked Graham with Simcox and police located Graham's auto but were unable to find him. The search continued for Graham, then sought as a material witness, until he appeared at police headquarters at 3 p.m. yesterday and surrendered.

In questioning Graham, Lt. McDaniel learned of the attempted robbery and that the pair had discarded Dardzinski's gun and the weapon they had in the North Side area.

They then drove to the home of a friend of Simcox on Avondale St. and attempted to locate a doctor. Graham finally went to an outside phone and called the ambulance and disappeared.

Police declined to reveal the name of the Avondale St. resident at the request of the Beaver County authorities.

After officers learned about the two guns being discarded, an intensive search of the North Side area was started, but darkness prevented police from finding the weapons.

The search was resumed this morning.

A World War II Navy veteran, Mr. Simcox was born in Chester, Nov. 12, 1937, son of Mrs. Olive Pugh Simcox, who resides at the home, and the late Frank Simcox. He was a member of the Westminster United Presbyterian Church in Chester.

Besides his mother, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Steve (Janie) Locke of Las Vegas; four brothers, Frank H. Simcox of Calcutta, Wallace Simcox of Newell, Joseph Simcox of Chester and Capt. Thomas A. Simcox of Ft. Benning, Ga.; two sisters, Mrs. John (Esther) Laughlin of Poland, and Mrs. Susan Merchant, at home, and one grandson.

Private funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Chester Arner Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Donald Bell, pastor of the Westminster church. Burial will be in the Shadow Lawn Memory Gardens in Newell.

Friends may call Tuesday night from 7 to 9 at the funeral chapel.

moved up the hillsides overlooking the 20-mile-long valley in which the Communists were believed concentrated.

A report from the battle-ground said a South Vietnamese unit had found 200 Viet Cong bodies and a weapons cache, but it was not immediately determined how they had died nor was the site pinpointed. Earlier the Marines announced they had killed 122 Communists, and that the total had been confirmed by body count.

Walt said one Marine unit took moderate losses but added that over-all Marine casualties since the start of the fight were light while the Viet Cong casualty figure "runs into the hundreds."

In the Go Cong area 40 miles south of Saigon, a two-day battle between the Communists and 1,300 Vietnamese troops ended Sunday night in a rout of the Viet Cong, a U. S. military spokesman said. He reported 181 Viet Cong killed and 10 captured in contrast to light government casualties.

More than 100 Communists were reported killed in other scattered encounters with government troops, some right on Saigon's doorsteps. These included:

— A Vietnamese battalion smoked out an undetermined number of Viet Cong in Mekong River delta rice paddies 75 miles southwest of Saigon and killed 106 after a brisk fight. The government forces also captured nine Russian carbines, two light machine guns, mines and explosives.

— A Vietnamese patrol beat off a dawn ambush 15 miles south southwest of Saigon, killing one Viet Cong, capturing three and detaining eight more suspects without any casualties.

— Two young women terrorists threw a grenade into a police station at Gia Dinh, on the northern outskirts of the capital, injuring two policemen, one seriously. One of the wounded men emptied his pistol at the attackers and killed one.

— Terrorists raided a pagoda in the village of Tan Huong, 35 miles south southwest of Saigon, killing 23 persons in their sleep and wounding seven others. The pagoda was being used for housing by workers building a canal.

The North and South Vietnamese Communists called on their troops and people to stiffen their fight against the United States. The appeal came in statements from North Viet Nam's military leaders and the National Liberation Front, the Viet Cong's political command, broadcast by Radio Hanoi in connection with the Northern army's 21st anniversary on Dec. 22 and the fifth anniversary of the Liberation Front on Dec. 20. Red China's official Peking People's Daily said the Chinese people were "fully prepared for a war to be forced upon them at any time by the U.S. aggressors."

In London, British journalist Felix Greene reported after his recent visit to North Viet Nam that "the bombing of their country has united the North Vietnamese as nothing else could have done."

Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie has called for passage of a resolution "dissociating the Republican party's interests and activities from those of the John Birch Society and similar extremist groups."

"Failure of the committee to pass such a resolution," Smylie told National Chairman Ray C. Bliss, "would be interpreted by the press and the public as an act of equivocation by the leadership of our party."

Pennsylvania Sen. Hugh Scott, once a national chairman himself, has called for committee action on a repudiation he proposed to the party's 1964 national convention. It was overwhelmingly rejected by delegates who chose Goldwater to be the GOP presidential nominee.

Key words in the Scott proposal: "We repudiate the efforts of irresponsible extremist groups, such as the Communists, the Ku Klux Klan, the John Birch Society and others, to discredit our party by their efforts to infiltrate positions of responsibility in the party or to attach themselves to its candidates."

Smylie is a member of the committee; Scott is not.

As a presidential campaigner, Goldwater repeatedly refused to repudiate the support of people who belong to the Birch Society, but he did denounce its leader, Robert Welch — the man who called former President Dwight D. Eisenhower a tool of communism.

500 officers and men and swiftly erased most of the scars of a spectacular fire that swept the flight deck at midship Sunday as the 80,000-ton flat-top was launching aircraft to fly to Oceania Naval Air Station near Norfolk.

Eleven flight deck crewmen were burned and four others suffered minor injuries in the fire triggered by jet fuel spilled from a ruptured drop tank of a Phantom II fighter plane.

A helicopter plucked from the ocean a crewman who had leaped from the flight deck to escape the flames and an officer in the Phantom who had ejected from the plane on orders of the pilot, who thought the craft was afire. Both rescued men were unhurt and the pilot flew safely on one engine to Oceania.

Only one airplane, another Phantom II, was damaged before fire-fighters extinguished the flames with fog foam.

On her arrival at Norfolk, the carrier's crew and members of Air Wing 7 were to be greeted by their families and by Vice Adm. Waldemar Wendt, deputy commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

On orders of Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze, Wendt was to present to the ship and her air wing the Navy unit commendation for exceptionally meritorious service from June 5 to Nov. 11 "while participating in combat operations in Southeast Asia in support of United States national policy."

The Independence, first attack fleet carrier assigned to the China seas, launched more than 7,000 combat sorties against the enemy and took part in the first major series of coordinated strikes against North Vietnamese supply lines north of the Hanoi-Haiphong complex.

Adm. David L. McDonald,

chief of naval operations, radioed the ship: "Your West Pacific cruise earned Independence an enviable reputation as a two-ocean carrier of formidable ability. The pioneering of your air wing dodging surface-to-air missiles and then destroying the launch sites sets them apart as veterans of the newest air threat. Your record is one of which you may be proud."

Beauty Down On The Farm

Columbiana County has a right to be proud of its many fine farms. The beauty of its countryside leaves little to be desired in most respects.

There are some spots, however, which, for one reason or another, don't fit properly into the picture at present.

Under a statewide farm beautification program which is just taking shape farms which have been lagging in this respect will have an incentive and opportunity to correct the situation. And in doing so they will be able not only to improve the value of their own property and the general appearance of the area in which they are located, but also to achieve personal recognition in competition with others.

The objective of the program is to make Ohio farms "the most attractive in the nation."

The general idea is to take steps to improve the appearance of farm homes and farm buildings, grounds, driveways and rural roadsides.

Two phases are planned under the project — one an educational effort designed to develop in farm families a greater sense of pride in their farm and community; the other a series of contests operated at the county level, with awards being offered on the basis of progress made by individuals or communities in beautifying their areas.

Those who see the need should start thinking about improvements now and then placed their thoughts into action when the rules and regulations of the program are announced.

A Good Taste

One of the pleasing episodes that already has marked the Christmas season has been "Operation Cookie Jar" conducted by Columbiana County's 4-H clubs.

It apparently is proving more successful than anticipated as a morale-builder for Americans fighting in Viet Nam.

As reported in Saturday's Review, an airman serving at the Da Nang base enjoyed the cookies so much and appreciated the gesture so greatly that he quickly dashed off a letter of appreciation — including a request for the recipe itself.

Other "thank-you" notes already have been received, and there undoubtedly will be more.

The area 4-H members can look on this Christmas as one of their proudest and merriest.

In their own way they have done much to wipe out the bad taste of demonstrations that must have had those in the front lines shaking their heads in wonderment and disgust.

Mikoyan Enjoys A Unique Status

Anastas Mikoyan, last of the old Bolsheviks to stand tall in the Kremlin, has resigned from the honorary position of president of the Soviet Union.

The fact he has been allowed to resign — that he was not degraded — and will remain in a position of influence in party circles reflects his unique status in Soviet politics. He has outlasted all his revolutionary contemporaries and held his own against his bureaucratic associates.

Vyacheslav Molotov, once considered indestructible, has disappeared. Nikita Khrushchev hasn't disappeared but is not permitted to appear, which is subtle distinction in degradation.

Political evolution in the Soviet Union is no less fascinating than it is in the United States, where the American presidency and the relationship between the executive and legislative departments change so rapidly they must be reappraised at weekly intervals to keep track of them.

The self-perpetuating hierarchy of the Soviet Union now is rejuvenating itself with younger men. Like the old Bolsheviks of the Russian revolution, the old leadership of the counter-revolution that switched Russia from Marxism to authoritarian state capitalism is being beaten by the clock. The 20th century is two-thirds gone. In a few more years all the political leadership will have changed.

Old age and death come to absolutists in Russia as they come to all men everywhere. And the vitally important feature of absolutism is that, being absolute, it never can be sure of its future.

Men's minds are not absolute. Each one is different. There always is an "old guard" and a "new generation" and rarely, if ever, can they agree on anything.

From Pole To Pole

State Rep. Bernice K. Mackenzie of Stark County wants to get rid of the pole-to-pole part of the Ohio driver license examination.

Years ago when friends and acquaintances were flunking the pole-to-pole ordeal in the Ohio driver license tests, we said no driver ever parked his car between poles.

They parked between cars. They used realistic sight lines, not artificial ones.

Later on, when seasoned Ohio drivers who never had taken the pole-to-pole test were forgetting to renew their licenses and starting from scratch with the driver license bureau, the test's absurdity was highlighted.

Ohioans who had been driving for years with no blemish on their records could no more park between two poles than fly. They were being flunked out for inability to do something no Ohio driver ever had been required to do in his life—something that had no relation to traffic safety.

The absurdity in the pole-to-pole test is that otherwise competent drivers often can't pass it because they have taken no special instruction. How do new applicants pass it? They hire instructors to teach them how to park between poles, that's how. And what does this have to do with parking between cars? Very little.

Rep. MacKenzie says the registrar of motor vehicles can change any part of the test any time he thinks it can stand improvement. If he changed the pole-to-pole test tomorrow, it still would be a wasted lifetime of nonsensical fumadiddle too late.

By Truman Twill

The other side says there is nothing to talk about until the United States clears out of Southeast Asia, lock, stock and barrel.

The United States says there is nothing to talk about until the other side clears out of South Viet Nam — this despite the fact most members of the other side live in South Viet Nam.

The United States would have great trouble defining what communism is in this particular situation, and the other side would have as much or more trouble defining what colonialism is, as far as the United States is concerned.

It goes without saying that neither side has the slightest intention of clearing out as a prerequisite to the start of negotiations.

This is a case of conversational incompatibility, not unlike that which makes it impossible for individuals to communicate and very much like that which puts a barrier between the two sides in disputes over labor contracts.

In other words, when they're ready to understand each other, there will be no trouble understanding each other. That may be a good many thousand casualties later, but it will not be forever.

Strike Waves In Face Of War

By Victor Riesel

It's regrettable that this society of ours is not as inquisitive as it is acquisitive.

If it were so, it might learn there is a war on, and that there are strikes flaring in plants which make it possible to fight such a defensive war.

Bullets and shells, Navy Snakeye missiles and submarine gadgetry, Phantom jets and space craft all have been involved in the recent rash of parading pickets.

This aroused, placard-bearing proletariat simply proves that the more things change the more they are the same. There were strikes during the second World War and during the Korean holocaust.

But this bloody season the stoppages have come earlier. Oddly, many of the walkouts have been led by local leaders of the International Association of Machinists, highly respected in many quarters for its industrial statesmanship.

Why then did one of its lodges (locals) strike the Rome (New York) Cable Division of Alcoa on Nov. 15, thus crippling the manufacture of vitally needed wire components for new submarines?

THE NAVY WANTS that wiring. Federal officials said the launching of vital subs may be delayed for lack of this tiny bit of equipment. It's only a small percentage of the plant's production. But it is such a major item.

Yet, seniority appears to be more on the minds of some strikers than submarines. Seniority, not more money, is the major issue. Seniority—a matter of who gets up the line to what job or who gets bumped on down.

This is what's been keeping some 650 people out, this question of the seniority line. Is it such a passionate objective that the strikers have forgotten there is no seniority in the swampish front line in Viet Nam? Or should one not raise such an issue?

There's the matter of bullets and shells for that front line. Much of this ammo is made by Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. in East Alton, Ill. Last Wednesday morning the machinists hit the bricks there. Soon teamsters, chemical workers and building trades unionists honored the picket line.

PERHAPS IT'S UNKIND to remind the machinists of this, but to each his own.

The issues: Seniority—and working conditions. These are grave issues, indeed, away from the far off places where is heard the whine of the bullets already manufactured. These are the issues which took 3,800 out that morning. There was no real objection to the handsome money package offered the union members.

And what of the six-day Phantom jet strike at the McDonnell Aircraft Corp.? There the issue on the surface was the redefining of job classifications in some 75 categories.

There are other strikes which keep the Pentagon trouble-shooters hopping these days. But it would not be accurate to report that the walkouts have caused any short supply of air and ground or sea blockade equipment or shooting "stuff."

Not yet. However, the government people believe that is hardly the issue. There is no knowing when an enemy suicide raid, or accidental destruction sends materiel reserves up in giant sky-reaching flames and thunder.

Strikes have a built-in emotional virus. They're catching, like a fever. If the redoubtable machinists can strike, and create no backlash, other mature unions also may walk out. There appears to be no way of averting the swarm-outs.

FOR EXAMPLE, the machinists have some 2,000 lodges. From now on they will be hard put to prove to the public that they do not suffer from an overdose of local autonomy and trade union democracy.

But a lodge (or a local) is not inanimate. There are the members. To understand what is happening one must understand today's rank and file compared to yesteryear's.

It is younger. It is more educated. It expects more. Mostly, it has not gone through the depression of the thirties. It was born into prefabricated unionism.

If it does not get something each contract expiration, it rejects the local and national leadership. Money is secondary, naturally. It wants fringes, ever longer, ever fancier.

And it's more cocky now that it's in a war economy. It even laughed at the old gag about prosperity being around the corner. It's here and has been for some time.

There's money but not enough skilled manpower. So if you don't get what you want, you strike while the shooting is on. Who knows what goes when the shootings over?

'Christmas Gift That Will Last'

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW

We, the school board of the Southern Local School District, feel it is a must for our children, our schools and our community that the two operating levies pass Tuesday.

These two levies mean to our school system $51,000 in operating funds which, if we hope to maintain our schools on a par with other schools in our own tri-state area, we, the voters of the Southern Local School District, must pass.

By approving these two levies, we can give to our children a Christmas gift that will have never-ending results and afford to them an equal opportunity for a better education. It is true an education can't be given to a child merely as a gift, but that he or she must earn and learn it through hard work. But it is the duty of every school district to give to children the best possible facilities and teachers available that they might attain an education second to none.

All of this can be made possible by the voters of the Southern Local School District by two "Yes" votes Tuesday.

And with your "Yes" votes, a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year for our children.

'Don't Sell The Kids Short'

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW

The PTA of Salineville appeals to every citizen to think twice about our school system.

The special election Tuesday brings our attention once again to a decision. "Shall our schools be buried or will we forge ahead in the progress that every child deserves?"

The renewal levy will barely, if at all, keep our schools operating. The new 3-mill levy is designated for general improvements, salary increases updating outdated educational facilities. The foundation is laid, but we need to add more blocks for our children's growing needs. We want the best for them. And education is the best investment any parent can give his child.

Don't sell the kids short. Get out and vote "Yes" on both levies Tuesday.

Through The Years

From The Review Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO — A hole was burned in the floor and several rooms damaged by smoke and water at the Charles Jones home on Anderson Blvd., near the Dixonville Rd., in a fire blamed on an overheated furnace.

The old non-denominational "Free Church" at Elkton, which had been closed since 1920, was converted into a parish house for the Methodist Episcopal congregation.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Mrs. Evelyn Garner was named president of the Goldenrod Club during a meeting at the home of Mrs. Joyce Leek of Jackson St.

East Liverpool High School defeated a veteran Midland basketball team, 36-19, with Jim Harris leading the Potter scoring with 16 points.

TEN YEARS AGO — City Hospital was included on the list of hospitals considered eligible for grants from the Ford Foundation, which was distributing funds to such institutions in 48 states.

Charles Beaver was named president of the Glenmoor Men's Brotherhood and George Welker was elected vice president.

Dangers Ahead

By Raymond Moley

Hard Look At 'New' Economics

The "new" economics, conceived in the Kennedy years, built into a formidable theory by various wordsmiths in the White House and imposed upon the treasury by presidential pressure, seems to be in trouble. For the measures adopted in its name, such as wholesale tax cuts, immense spending programs and calculated continuing deficits, are producing exactly what we were assured would not happen — inflation.

Perhaps I should not say that the economic seers in the Kennedy years guaranteed that there would be no inflation. All they said was that we wouldn't feel it because we would all be so very prosperous.

In an issue of the Tax Review, published by the reliable research agency, the Tax Foundation, Arthur F. Burns, formerly chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, defines the "new" economics as "the deliberate adoption of budgetary deficits without regard to their duration . . . as long as a gap existed between the nation's actual production and theoretically what it could produce if unemployment did not exceed 4 per cent."

ANOTHER FORMER CHAIRMAN of the Eisenhower Council of Economic Advisers, Raymond J. Saulnier, gives a shorter definition: "fiscal and monetary expansionism."

Summed up in less technical terms, the "new" economics means that we can have prosperity if we manufacture enough money. And the money spent or invested will bring enough production so that, even with lower tax rates, we can get all the money back again. But when we get it back, we don't pay the federal and private debts caused by the deficits. We manufacture more money with more deficits and keep the wheels spinning indefinitely, or maybe forever.

This idea isn't new at all. France was at it nearly two centuries ago. In the United States it had its great fling in Populism, which reached its climax in the half-baked preaching of William Jennings Bryan.

The only difference is that the multiplication of money and credit is attained by different methods. And now it's embellished with a lot of brand new words and phrases.

In Arthur Schlesinger's book, "A Thousand Days," we have a vivid account of the revival of Populism in the White House in 1961, 1962 and 1963. Not only is Schlesinger a devotee of the "new" economics, but he supplies a whole package of jargon to explain it.

He says that when he and the palace guard were giving John F. Kennedy lessons in economics there were two schools of exponents, the "structural" and the "fiscal" people.

THE "STRUCTURALISTS," as he calls them, believed in putting through a lot of expensive programs and getting the money for them by deficits and thus by monetary expansion. The "fiscalists" believed in putting out more money regardless, even by cutting taxes.

Schlesinger says there weren't any "pure" structuralists or fiscalists. We can understand that, because both were for a great deal of spending. But the structuralists believed the government should get the money and spend it itself. The fiscalists believed that if taxes were cut, the people would spend it.

Thus, both roads started with deficits, and both would end in general inflation. Prof. J. Kenneth Galbraith was a structuralist in the administration because he believed that if the people had more money they wouldn't have enough sense to spend it properly. Only the bureaucracy had the sagacity to spend intelligently.

While Mr. Kennedy sent a great many programs for federal spending to Congress, he couldn't get them through. And so he deserted the structuralists and went with the fiscalists and proposed a tax cut. This was easier for Congress to take. Also, it went fairly well with business.

Then came President Johnson, who grabbed both sides of the theory and got not only tax cuts but a vast lot of new spending programs, too.

THE ECONOMIC THERMOMETER shows overheating, and that means inflation. This disturbs the President's convalescence. He called all hands to Texas to figure out what is happening. And then came the decision of the Federal Reserve Board to check the spree by raising the discount rate.

This, Mr. Johnson says, was done by an independent agency. The country is fortunate that we have such an independent agency, because it is plainly telling us of dangers ahead which the administration is not willing to admit.

Odd Facts

Possibly the most useful nut in the world is the familiar Brazil nut. From its fibers such diverse things are made as brushes, clothes, mats, net, rope, paper, hats, sails, torches, knife handles, fuel, food, soap, candles and lubricating oil.

A person with good eyesight is capable with his naked eye of seeing about 9000 stars, but because of mists and haze the number of stars most people can see at any one time is probably somewhat less than 4,000.

The largest rope ever manufactured was a choir fiber launching rope for the British liner, "Great Eastern," in 1858. This rope was 47 inches in diameter and consisted of four strands each of 3,780 yarns.

The first adhesive postage stamps in the United States contained portraits of Benjamin Franklin and George Washington and were 5 and 10-cent issues, respectively.

The expression "get off your high horse" originated in the 14th century when snobbish English nobles bred and rode taller horses than anyone else.

Driver Denies 2 Charges, Hearing Slated Thursday

A hearing for an East End motorist, cited early Sunday on charges of drunken driving and driving without an operator's license, were continued today in Municipal Court until Thursday after he pleaded innocent to both counts.

James Willard Ott of Lee St. was arrested on the two charges at 1:13 a. m. Sunday on E. 4th St., police said.

Meanwhile, Pat E. Smith, 240 Thompson Ave., was convicted on charges of driving while intoxicated and driving without a license by Judge Samuel M. Chertoff, who acquitted the defendant on a charge of resisting a police officer in performance of his duties.

Following the lengthy hearing, Judge Chertoff fined Smith $200 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in the city jail on the drunk driving count and ordered him to pay the costs on the charge of driving without a permit.

The judge said he would recommend to West Virginia authorities that Smith's license be suspended. Police said Smith was carrying a license issued to an address on Grant St., Newell, when he was arrested Dec. 1. Smith had pleaded innocent to the three charges when arraigned the same morning. His case had been continued until Dec. 6 to permit him to obtain Counsel and then was continued until this morning.

Dorison Stock, 1817 Nevada St., Wellsville, had his license suspended until Dec. 27 and was ordered to pay court costs on a charge of speeding 50 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone on W. 8th St.

Stock was cited Thursday by the State Highway Patrol which said he had traveled from Wellsville at speeds ranging from 60 to 65 miles an hour and was exceeding 50 when halted at Westgate School.

driver had appeared in a Jefferson County Court on a traffic charge four months ago. Judge Chertoff commented: "I'm going to give you a Christmas present: your license is suspended until Dec. 27."

Another Wellsville motorist, Kenneth Moore, 46, of 2011 Chester Ave., was fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Moore also was cited by the patrol Thursday on W. 8th St. Officers notified the court that the defendant told them he was late for work but was not paying close attention to his speed because he was counting cars on a passing train.

John Wesley Wilson of Bolivar

Rd., Wellsville, was fined a total of $25 and costs on charges of speeding and illegal registration.

Wilson was arrested at 6:30 a. m. today on Pennsylvania Ave. by police, who said he was driving 65 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone. The plates were issued to another auto, police said.

Robert M. Glover, 104 Church Alley, Chester, was fined $15 and costs after pleading guilty to a reckless driving charge. He was cited Thursday on Pennsylvania Ave., police said.

A hearing for Homer H. Fultz Jr., 540 Campground Rd., Wellsville, was continued until next Monday on a charge of failing to transfer his license. He also pleaded guilty.

Fultz was cited by the patrol Sunday after an accident on the Campground Rd.

Charles M. Allen, 2033 Clark

Ave., Wellsville, was fined $15 and costs after being convicted on a fictitious registration charge. Allen had pleaded innocent a week ago after Routes 7 and 30 at Cannons Mills for speeding 60 miles an hour in a 45-mile zone.

Robert Roser of Beaver Falls was fined $25 and costs but the fine was suspended on payment of costs on a charge of driving left of center. He also had pleaded innocent a week ago after being cited Dec. 4 following an accident on County Rd. 435.

A hearing is scheduled Tuesday morning for Jerrold Dwayne Mason of 9th Ave., LaCroft, cited by the patrol Saturday on Routes 7 and 30 at Cannons Mills for speeding 60 miles an hour in a 45-mile zone.

Mayor To Fill Vacancies Terms Will Close Dec. 1 For 6 In City Board Posts

The terms of six members of four unsalaried municipal boards and commissions are scheduled to expire at midnight Dec. 31. The vacancies will be subject to appointments by Mayor George E. Willshaw.

The expiring terms are held by: Robert A. Kapp, president, James J. McGowan, treasurer, and Mrs. Joyce Seever, all on the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Public Library.

Judge Louis Tobin, president, on the Board of Thompson Park Commissioners.

Angelo Fiorello, on the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

Dr. J. Keith Rugh, chairman, on the Board of Health.

No tenures will run out at the end of the year on the Board of Public Utilities, which administers the water and sewage departments. A vacancy already has occurred on the new City Park Commission.

Expiration dates of the terms on the city boards are staggered so that a few run out at the end of each year. For instance, five ended as 1964 closed and five also ran out at the end of 1963.

Holdover members of the Board of Health are: Mrs. Ila Finney Johnston, whose term runs through the end of 1966; Dr. C. M. Mayberry, 1967; Paul Zehnder, 1968, and C. Frank Dales, 1969. Howard Claypool is clerk, named by the board. Terms are for five years.

There are three holdover members of the Library Board—Miss Sara Heddeleston, Arthur T. Thomas and Mrs. Barbara Jones. All of their terms run until Dec. 31, 1968. The tenures are for four years.

Continuing as members of the Thompson Park Board are W. Leland Thompson, secretary, 1968, William H. Vodrey Jr., 1966, and Louis Yanni, 1967. The terms are for four years.

Holdover members of the Civil Service Commission are Donald I. Bucham, chairman, 1967, and Howard A. Tullis, 1969. The terms are for six years. P. K. Calhoun is clerk, named by the commission.

Continuing on the utilities board are W. O. Schneider, chairman, July 1, 1968; Howard T. Moore, July 1, 1966, and F. J. Cloran, July 1, 1968. The terms are for six years.

The term of James Moss ran out Friday on the new City Park Commission, created by a vote of the people late in 1964. The other members are John Parsons, chairman, Dec. 10, 1967, and Yanni, Dec. 10, 1966.

Germany Wants A-Weapon Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard says his country must be given a share in control of the West's nuclear arsenal.

In a copyrighted interview in "U.S. News & World Report," Erhard said: "...West Germany is presently threatened by almost 1,000 Soviet medium-range rockets, plus some new self-propelled rocket launchers. Therefore we West Germans must share in our own defense to a degree matching the danger we face and the share of the collective defense burden that we carry."

Erhard will meet with President Johnson in this country next week.

Palestine Crash Damages 2 Cars

EAST PALESTINE — A car and a station wagon were damaged slightly in a minor collision Sunday at 6:40 p. m. at the intersection of Routes 14 and 170 at the outskirts of the city.

The crash involved a 1960 sedan operated by James Felger, 18, of R. D. 1 and a 1957 station wagon driven by Ruth Ellen Smith, 47, of 83 N. Walnut St., according to the State Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Felger was slowing to make a left turn as the woman started to pass him, officers said. The front of each vehicle suffered minor damage.

Officers investigated a total of nine accidents over the weekend, all of which were in the northern section of the county.

'Open House' Set For Gavers Pair On Anniversary

LISBON — The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde D. Eskew of Gavers will be observed Sunday, Dec. 19, with an "open house" reception from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m. at the Wayne Township Grange Hall.

The celebration is being arranged by their daughter, Miss Joyce Eskew of Gavers.

The couple was married Dec. 24, 1940, at the Church of the Nazarene in Lisbon. Mrs. Eskew is the former Miss Meretta Bruy, daughter of Alfred Bruy of E. Washington St. and the late Mrs. Bruy. Eskew is formerly of Buckhannon, W. Va.

The Eskews lived in Lisbon until 1948, when they moved to Gavers. They own and operate the Eskew Service Station and Grocery Store of Gavers.

No formal invitations have been issued. All friends, relatives and neighbors are invited.

Group To Study Polygraph Usage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John E. Moss says the President has set up an inter-agency committee to study the federal use of polygraphs as "lie detectors."

The California Democrat, chairman of the Foreign Operations and Government Information subcommittee, said the presidential action is in line with a recommendation earlier this year from the Moss subcommittee.

Said Moss: "A series of hearings and investigations by my subcommittee disclosed that there is no such thing as a valid 'lie detector,' yet federal agencies are spending nearly $5 million a year to operate the electronic gadgets."

Mellvane, Lancione Speak At Ohio Democrat Gathering

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The two Democrats who have announced as gubernatorial hopefuls pooh-poohed each other's candidacy.

Other prospective contenders for the party's No. 1 state nomination weren't even on hand, though invited.

And a committee was named to decide whether the official party hierarchy will endorse any particular candidate for the May primary.

That was part of the picture at Saturday's Democratic state meeting that otherwise, according to Chairman William L. Coleman, was "very productive."

State Reps. Harry H. Mellvane of Cincinnati and A. G. Lancione of Bellaire accepted invitations to address the gathering of county chairmen and other party leaders, and both claimed afterward they picked up support in their bids to be nominated for governor.

Mellvane backers indicated they don't believe Lancione is serious about his candidacy. Lancione questioned whether Mellvane is serious about his own candidacy.

The Mellvane forces predicted Lancione, House minority leader in the last legislature, will drop out and seek re-election as a representative. This would give him a chance, they said, to become speaker of what they said could become a Democrat-controlled House.

U. S. Rep. Robert E. Sweeney, State Sen. Frank W. King and Cleveland City Council President James Stanton, mentioned prominently as possible candidates for governor, passed up the meeting.

Congress Opens Study Of Interest Rate Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress takes an official look today at the interest rate hike which placed the Federal Reserve Board in direct conflict with President Johnson on economic policy.

The Senate-House Economic Committee opens hearings on the increase, calling Chairman William McCleskey Martin Jr. and the other members of the Federal Reserve Board as first witnesses.

The chairman of the committee, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said in an interview he believes the Federal Reserve's real motive for the increase was not to ward off inflation or improve the international standing of the dollar but to "bail out the New York banks which have $15 billion in certificates of deposit coming due."

Patman, who has been demanding the Federal Reserve Board chairman's resignation for months, said, "It will be a miracle if Martin hangs on."

Patman said the banks wanted a higher interest rate for the certificates, a special form of deposit for a fixed time on which banks normally pay higher than regular interest.

"They thought they might have trouble getting the certificates unless they could pay 5 1/2 per cent," Patman said.

However, the senior Republican member of the committee, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, disassociated himself from Patman's accusation, as well as from the chairman's long-term efforts to subject the Federal Reserve, an independent agency, to government controls.

"I don't agree with what the Federal Reserve did in this case," Javits said in a separate interview, "but I think it is very important for the Federal Reserve to maintain its independence. I think the force of public opinion at hearings like this will do what is necessary for correction. Any legislative action would impair the Federal Reserve's independence."

The Federal Reserve Board announced on Dec. 5 an increase in the discount rate from 4 to 4 1/2 per cent and an increase from 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 per cent in the ceiling on interest rates banks can pay on time deposits. Johnson promptly expressed his displeasure. The resulting increase in interest rates throughout the banking system tends to raise the cost of money for all borrowers, from the consumer buying a television set or automobile to the businessman expanding his plant, and the government selling bonds to cover its deficit.

The board, which acted by 4-3 vote, said the action was intended to keep prices stable and improve the international position of the dollar in the face of continuing unfavorable balances of payments.

Johnson Sets Policy Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson returned to the White House early today for an intensive round of conferences with foreign leaders, final preparations for the new budget and more discussion of Viet Nam.

Johnson had been at his LBJ Ranch near Johnson City, Tex., for 24 days — relaxing, recuperating from his Oct. 8 operation and holding a series of top-level policy talks on the whole range of governmental activity.

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers said staff work would occupy much of the President's time today.

Johnson had to make final preparations for the arrival Tuesday of President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan for two days of meetings. Ayub arrived in New York Sunday.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, who has been trying to promote Viet Nam peace talks, will be at the White House Friday.

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who wants for his country a role in the nuclear defense of Western Europe, will arrive Saturday for two or three days of conferences with Johnson.

The President and Mrs. Johnson are expected to return to the ranch a few days before Christmas for a holiday stay that may continue into January.

While in Washington, Johnson also will have to oversee final preparation of the federal budget—including decisions on how sharply to curb funds for "Great Society" programs enacted this year. Officials disclosed Friday that curbs have been ordered to help offset expected outlays in Viet Nam.

In addition, the President faces new decisions on Viet Nam and that subject is certain to take up much of his time.

There will be holiday festivities, too — the lighting of the national Christmas tree behind the White House on Friday afternoon and a presidential party that night for White House employees.

The earth has grown with its burden of care
But at Christmas it always is young
The heart of the jewel burns lustrous and fair
And its soul full of music breaks forth on the air
When the song of the angels is sung.

4-H Membership Shows Increase

LISBON — The 4-H enrollment in Columbiana County in 1965 increased by 261 over figures for last year, a report from the cooperative extension office showed.

Robert B. Lewis, county extension agent in 4-H, said the increase was due to the lowering of the 4-H age and more 4-H clubs being organized. A total of 97 clubs, an increase of 10 over 1964, were providing 4-H programs in the county, he said.

The County 4-H Council, with Mrs. Ed Serafy of Wellsville R. D. 1, as chairman, has indicated a concern over the need for more 4-H advisers.

Communities that are listed as being in need of 4-H aides for 1966 are West Point, Salineville, Summitville, Leetonia, Kensington, North Georgetown and Lisbon.

Most of the communities are in need of boys clubs, but in some instances there is no active boys' or girls' organization, Lewis said.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Cowboy Leif Rides The Waves

When actors find themselves not acting, which is most of the time, they look for sidelines to save them from going nuts and also to keep them living in the grand manner to which they've become accustomed.

Hal Humphrey

The more affluent ones may own an antique shop or a car agency. Less fortunate thespians wind up selling men's haberdashery. A third group goes into TV commercials for cat food or cough drops. Some of these get so rich that they convince themselves commercials are more important to the country's cultural welfare than drama.

LEIF ERICKSON considers he is in a class by himself. Between TV roles as the big, tough Western hombre (he's in a "Bonanza" next Sunday), Leif is a yacht salesman.

"I was down at the marina where my own schooner is all the time anyway, so I decided why not make it pay. I like the people who like boats," says Leif, who cuts a fancy figure in his yachting cap.

In the less than six months he's been at it, Leif has sold eight boats ranging in price from $6,000 to $40,000 for a boat sales company at Los Angeles' new Marina del Rey.

"YOU DON'T sell boats," corrects Leif. "People come to you just to talk about themselves believe they should have. You have to consider their personality and purpose in owning a boat. Your job is about the same as a psychiatrist's."

There's a surprise element in the boat business just as thrilling, according to Leif, as in show business — and for him just as remunerative, because at the rate he's been going his income from boat sales will be about even with his acting income.

"You may spend weeks or months, on and off, with a couple looking at boats," explains Leif. "Then one afternoon the wife will just look down the hat of one and suddenly say, 'This is it,' and if the husband doesn't balk at the cost, then, like she said, that's it."

OCCASIONALLY, but not as often as one might think, Leif's acting career has an effect on a transaction.

"Haven't we seen you somewhere before?" a boat looker will ask.

"Well, I've been kicking around quite a while," Leif replies modestly, then admits at the moment he is working in a "Virginian" episode, as was the case recently (it will be on the air Dec. 29).

"I had them meet me one day at Paramount where 'Bonanza' is filmed, and I think they were impressed enough that they bought the $50,000 boat instead of the $35,000 one they also were considering," says Leif, and adds, "there were fewer contingencies in the agreement, too."

HE PREFERS, however, not to plug himself as an actor to close a deal. The glamour wears off fast if the boat hasn't sold itself, he's discovered.

Thus far the salt which warmed his heart and wallet most was the one to his agent. "It's the first deal we've had where I was the one to get the 10 per cent," says Leif, laughing.

From his boat business Leif also has gained a measure of independence when it comes to taking or leaving acting parts. The producers of "Peyton Place" wanted him for a particular role in nine episodes, but at a paltry $500 per episode Leif said he couldn't do it and may be miss a more lucrative role or even a boat sale.

"TWO YEARS AGO I was entered in the Acapulco boat race, and at the last minute I pulled out. It was just a feeling I had, but two days later I was called for an Elvis Presley picture which meant $25,000 for me," reports Leif, who may never venture out of the boat harbor again.

His own boat, a 33-foot schooner called "Pagan," was bought two years ago from an Air Force major.

Leif has made many sailing converts by taking friends and acquaintances for a short sail in the Pacific. He soon hopes to have his yacht broker's license.

Between that and doing Westerns ("I like them because they pay the most"), Leif figures to have it pretty well made.

Mercury Dip Seen Tonight As Rain Ends

Unseasonably warm temperatures will moderate tonight as the intermittent rain ends, but no really cold weather is anticipated soon despite the fact the first day of winter is little more than a week away, the Ohio forecaster said.

The mercury jumped into the high 60's and low 70's Sunday afternoon for one of the highest mid-December readings on record.

Although the mercury made it seem more like April than December, Tri-State District residents with an eye on the calendar took advantage of the pleasant weather to buy Christmas trees by the hundreds.

Highways were busy yesterday afternoon with some of the heaviest traffic in weeks. Virtually every auto had a Christmas tree in its trunk or on its roof.

The mercury went up into the 60's in the East Liverpool area under a warm sun. Downriver points had readings in the 70's.

The mercury fell only a little overnight. The thermometer stood at 52 at 6 this morning in downtown East Liverpool. It was 50 at the same time in the suburbs.

The weatherman said it will be cloudy and cooler tonight with a low in the mid-30's. Light rain or drizzle will end tonight, he said.

It will be cloudy and cooler Tuesday, the forecaster said, but the mercury still will range up to 45-50.

Transcontinental television was inaugurated Sept. 4, 1951, with President Truman's address at the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco.

Shafer Believed GOP Candidate In Pennsylvania

NEW YORK — A general belief that Pennsylvania Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer will be the Republican candidate for governor was expressed by top state Republican leaders at a week-end meeting of the Pennsylvania Society here.

Lt. Gov. Shafer of Meadville is seen by most GOP officials as the party choice, but Gov. William Scranton and Sen. Hugh Scott — the two most important figures in the slate making decision — remain uncommitted. Others still considered as candidates include State Secretary of Commerce John Tabor of Pittsburgh, Attorney General Walter Alessandroni of Philadelphia and Rep. Richard Schweiker of Montgomery County.

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: The Fabulous Dunklebum turns on all the lights on his glittering arms so Mr. D can see to repair the bus. But the gas had leaked out, so the monster had to carry the bus up the mountainside.

CHAPTER SEVEN

It was a long way up the mountain. The snow was deep and the rocks slick with ice. The Fabulous Dunklebum was gasping for breath when he finally brought the Zabbazara bus to the road at the top of the hill.

Daylight had come. The little boy pointed over the other side of the mountain to a cluster of houses and stables and workshops.

"It is Santa Land! And look how the road winds downhill. We can coast all the way. The Fabulous Dunklebum won't have to carry us any further."

"Then he can ride inside with me," said the crocodile. "I am sure he would like to see Santa, too."

SHE HAD fallen in love with the creature and did not want to part from him. The Fabulous Dunklebum was only too glad to stay with the only friends he had ever had. But he was too big and had too many arms to fit inside the bus, so he plopped on the roof.

Mr. D took the wheel. Even though he couldn't see straight he was the only one who knew how to drive. And you had to know a great deal just to blow the horn of a machine like the Zabbazara bus.

"Where is Santa Claus? We must see him immediately!"

He flapped his ears furiously and the bus began to roll. The little boy hung over one shoulder and the donkey over the other. Between them they kept Mr. D in the middle of the road by shouting "Move left!" or "Move right!"

As the way got steeper the bus went faster and faster. The crocodile thumped her tail wildly and screamed "Slow down! Slow down!" But unfortunately the brake wasn't working any more and there was no way to slow down.

The Fabulous Dunklebum was so shaken up some of his long glittering arms slipped down through the windshield that wasn't there anymore and began to flash lights off and on in Mr. D's face. Mr. D, not knowing what else to do, put his hand on the horn and honked it all the way down the mountain.

NOISY as a circus parade, the bus finally came to the bottom of the incline and, still in one piece, coasted into Santa Land. For a long moment no one moved on the Zabbazara bus. They could hardly believe they were alive.

Then the little boy shouted, "We're in time! I see elves. They are Santa's workers. See, they are standing all around. The Voodoo man hasn't come!" It was true. Across the snow fields they could see little fellows in peaked caps standing about the shops.

Mr. D leaped off the bus with the others behind him. They raced across the snow banks shouting "Hurray, hurray! We've come on time!"

Mr. D reached the first two elves. They had sacks of toys over their shoulders. Mr. D was so excited his crossed eyes rolled in his head.

"Where is Santa Claus? We must see Santa immediately! It's very important!"

The elves gazed at him and made no reply.

The little boy and the donkey and the crocodile and the Fabulous Dunklebum came panting up behind Mr. D.

"They don't answer me!" exclaimed Mr. D. "They don't understand!"

But the others took one look at the elves and fell back in horror.

"They're not alive!" gasped the boy. "They've turned to stone!"

Klan Group Fails In Bid To Hold Sunday Meeting

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan had been scheduled to meet Sunday in an Eagles' hall, but they could not get in and their leader did not show up.

The Klan business meeting was called by Parkie Scott, a Klan organizer from near Oregon, Ohio. Several Klansmen showed up at the Eagles' Aerie No. 280, but left when they were told there would be no meeting. Pete Plagakis, president of the Aerie, spent much of the afternoon at the door of the hall with a $15 check he had been sent as rental. He said the Klansmen hired the hall through a misrepresentation.

"A member of the Impalladins (a Newport auto club) came to us last week and said he wanted to rent our hall. We have rented it to them in the past for dances and thought they were going to use it for a dance again," Plagakis said.

He said he first heard the Klan was involved when newsmen called him about the meeting. Eagles officers then said they would not rent the hall to the Klan.

Scott did not come to the hall Sunday and Plagakis said he would mail him the check.

The Klan has held several cross burnings on Scott's farm.

Ohio Man Gives Away 50,000th Teddy Bear

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—R. A. McClean, the 74-year-old "Teddy Bear Man," left his Spencerville nursing home abode Sunday and gave away Teddy No. 50,000 to Steve Andrews, 9, at Lima Memorial Hospital.

Thus McClean retired from the project he began in 1949, giving the stuffed animals to ailing youngsters. He'll keep his interest up, he said, now that his age and health keep him from hospital visiting and the Lima Jaycees are picking up where he left off.

Maugham Realized His Status

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — W. Somerset Maugham at 91, getting too deaf to listen to music and too blind from cataracts to read, began slipping toward death Saturday in a way that would have pleased him. He was in a coma.

Twenty-seven years ago, when he was 64 and beginning to look down the uncertain corridor ahead, this English novelist, playwright and short-story writer explained how he would like to die.

He hoped he would not be aware of death's approach, he said, or undergo its pain. Yet, he guessed wrong about the thought of growing old. He said it didn't dismay him.

"It would be a very silly person," he said, "who drew the curtains and turned on the light to shut out the tranquility of the evening."

But at 91, deaf and going blind, he was saying "I am sick of this way of life. The weariness and sadness of old age make it intolerable."

In this spirit he approached the end of a long writing career which no one, including Maugham, considered great. He was a third-rater who made a rich living out of it. He said he had been writing for money since he was 18.

But he was a good writer, very readable, always clear and, as Clifton Fadiman said, a professional "offering high-grade entertainment. His hallmark is neither passion nor depth. It is good sense."

Maugham wrote 30 novels, 25 plays, 120 short stories. His best work was his novel, "Of Human Bondage," written in 1915. He thought it was his best, too.

By the time he was in his 60s, with most of his work behind him, he said he had no illusions about his place in English literature and that only two important British critics took him seriously.

In "The Summing Up," which he wrote in 1938 on his life, his work, and his outlook, he said, "In my twenties the critics said I was brutal; in my thirties they said I was flippant; in my forties they said I was cynical; in my fifties they said I was competent; and now in my sixties they say I am superficial."

"I look upon it as natural then that the world of letters should have attached no great importance to my work."

Maugham admitted his memory was bad but he said his head was always full of ideas for writing. He worked hard to improve himself, considering "simplicity not such an obvious merit as lucidity."

He regretted that he didn't have someone "with good sense" to direct his reading when he was young. But he traveled the world in search of experience for his writing. He warned writers to seek experience, not to wait for it.

This was why he condemned one of his contemporaries, Henry James, for standing at a window. In "Tellers of Tales" — a collection of short stories he edited — he said James "failed of being a good writer because his experience was inadequate and his sympathies were imperfect."

Maugham, in expressing lack of illusion about the merit of his work, called himself a "teller of tales round the fire."

Escapes At Bellaire

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP)—One of two brothers jailed here early Sunday sneaked out of Bellaire city jail with another youth who had been arrested with them. Police said they picked a lock in the cell area and slipped out a door.

The escapees were Charles A. Wilson and Sherman Lollathin, both 18, held for questioning about a service station break-in with Lollathin's brother Richard. Columbus police apprehended a youth Sunday night believed to be Wilson, but he was being investigated further.

GOP Slates '66 Push In West Virginia

CHARLESTON (AP) — West Virginia Republicans have laid the groundwork for what they hope will be a resurgence of their party at all levels of government next year.

About 500 GOP supporters gathered here on the weekend to get the blueprint for grassroots action from the state party's chieftains.

The delegates also heard a good bit of criticism directed at the present Democratic administration.

Former Republican Gov. Cecil H. Underwood, one of the featured speakers, said "scandal rocks our institutions" under the Democratic regime, "but where is the voice of Republican protest."

Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., R-W. Va., charged the Democrats with a "poverty of ideas, leadership and knowhow." He accused them of not having an original idea since Gov. H. G. Kump imposed the sales tax 32 years ago.

Boiled down, the GOP's plan for success at the polls next year calls for three major task forces to develop political programs, leadership and organization.

In addition to these policy groups, the plan envisions enlisting at least 20,000 workers to promote the party on door-to-door basis.

Psychiatry Report Given

Colleges Needn't Worry About Student Sex Lives

NEW YORK (AP) — Should college administrators worry about their students' sex lives? A report by a group of psychiatrists says they shouldn't, provided sexual activity is "practiced with appropriate attention to the sensitivities of other people."

An Associated Press survey of campus opinion today found much interest, but little agreement, concerning a report by a committee of the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry, a nationwide organization.

Most college administrators who had read the report and were willing to comment on it approached it cautiously. "It's a very liberal view, a little too far-fetched for me," said Thomas F. Jones, president of the University of South Carolina. "I can't be very detached about our young people's concerns and needs."

At the University of Michigan, Richard L. Cutler, vice president in charge of student affairs, said: "These people are professionals and entitled to their own opinion, but the University of Michigan at this time is not prepared to follow their advice."

Their advice, in essence: Make explicit the school's attitude towards sexual conduct and set up a "sound rules structure," but don't interfere unless sexual activity "fails to maintain privacy" and "is likely to be disturbing to others."

It "sounds like a good, sensible, down-to-earth statement of the situation," said William Speer, associate dean for student counseling at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "I am all in favor of anything that meets the issue head on, rather than with pussy-footing."

Dr. Henry Bruyn, director of student health service at the University of California, said: "I think it is an excellent report. The sexual growth and behavior of young adults is very often distorted and disturbed by overly restrictive college rules and policies."

The Rev. James V. McGlynn, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Detroit, a Roman Catholic school, called the report "a strange combination of valuable insights and bland oversimplification."

"It seems to overlook the sacred and personal nature of sex," he said. "Specifically for church-related colleges and universities our stand must clearly be for the morality of our religious group."

Dr. Edwin Harrison, president of Georgia Tech, said, "I don't think it's part of the administration of any college or university to condone or support any activity leading to immorality."

A similar view was expressed by Dr. Fred Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois. "The attitude of the University of Illinois, for as long as I can remember, is that illicit conduct is illicit conduct. This is behavior which is not condoned," Dr. Turner said.

duct is illicit conduct. This is behavior which is not condoned," Dr. Turner said.

the site, using a bar to pry open the station's lone door and to batter the hole in the wall for removal of the safe.

The safe apparently was rolled out of the station on its own wheels, he added.

Gunman Obtains $201 At Station In Brighton
NEW BRIGHTON — Police are searching today for a young bandit who held up an attendant at the Keystone Service Station on 5th Ave. Sunday night and escaped with $201.75.

Attendant Clifford Fleson of Wampum told police the young man came to the station about 9:30 to use a rest room.

Fleson was waiting on a customer at the gas pump and when he walked back into the station, the bandit pulled a gun which appeared to be a 22 caliber revolver and ordered Fleson to give him the money.

He then forced Fleson into the rest room and left. Fleson said he did not see a car and did not see the bandit leave.

Fleson described the young man as between 19 and 20, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing about 140.

How Can I?
ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What is a formula for a good "homemade" hardwood floor wax?
A.—Half a cake of melted paraffin and a cupful of turpentine makes a very good floor wax.

Q.—How can I finish off the rather rough edges of plywood after I've completed constructions of a cabinet or some other such article?
A.—Finish off these edges without additional trim by covering with cellulose ribbon of the proper width. Sand the edges smooth and square before gluing the ribbon into place. After one or more finishing coats of varnish or lacquer, the ribbon, if of the usual striped variety, will have the appearance of a band of colored inlay.

His first 10 years as a writer were hard, but in 1907 his play "Lady Frederick" was a hit, and thereafter he turned out successful plays, novels and short stories that made him a fortune. In 55 years he wrote 25 plays, 30 novels and 120 short stories.

Critics and literary scholars generally did not consider him a great writer, but a huge public thought him one of the world's best storytellers. His work was characterized by extreme clarity, economy of expression and strong plot lines.

In recent years his hearing had failed, cataracts dimmed his sight, and he looked forward to death.

Communist Concern

Yugoslav 'Beatniks' Stir Wrath Over Auto Thefts

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—After 20 years of communism, Yugoslavia is making the painful discovery that it has a generation of beatniks on its hands.

Stealing cars for thrills — and often smashing them up for extra kicks — has become a fad among Yugoslavia's swinging youth.

Beatniks are the rage. Youngsters fill the night clubs. They snap up the latest record imports from the West, couldn't care less about socialist preachings, and generally carry on like young people revolting against the establishment.

Parents despair, newspapers denounce and legislators make tougher laws. Despite everything, Yugoslavia's youngsters insist on going their own way.

Imitation by Yugoslav youth of their Western counterparts began several years ago, when Britain's Teddy boys were much imitated here.

As prosperity increased and Yugoslavia moved even further away from the strict conduct of conventional communism, the youthful trend toward independence spread.

The country has never seen anything, however, like the car theft fad. Hundreds have been stolen in recent months by youngsters who take them for joy rides, abandon them after a day or so or smash them into trees.

Thrill thefts have become so numerous that the Belgrade Politika Ekspres has started a free column of missing-car announcements for unlucky owners trying to trace their stolen machines.

Until recently, youngsters who stole cars for thrills were dealt with as juvenile delinquents. Parliament has altered the law to make car thefts a criminal offense, with sentences of up to six months in prison.

What astonishes older people is that many of the teen-agers involved are the children of company directors, officials and other well-to-do citizens.

A current issue of a Belgrade satirical weekly cartoons two shaggy-haired youths eyeing a parked Mercedes Benz.

"Let's not steal that one," says one of the boys. "It belongs to my dad."

Suicide Seen In Death Of Klan Figure

GRANITE QUARRY, N.C. (AP) — The Rowan County coroner said today the death of Grady B. Mars, retired military policeman linked with the Ku Klux Klan by a congressional investigator, may have been suicide.

Mars, 41, died of a gunshot wound in the head in his bedroom Saturday night.

Coroner Rufus Honeycutt quoted Mars' wife Jean, as saying her husband had been despondent since refusing to testify before the House Committee on Un-American Activities when it was investigating the Klan in October.

He said an official ruling on the cause of death will be made Tuesday "after we get certain reports back from the State Bureau of Investigation lab in Raleigh."

"I'm pretty sure it was suicide, but it won't be official until Tuesday," Honeycutt said.

Donald T. Appell, chief counsel for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, identified Mars in October as a district officer and organizer for the United Klans of America.

Mars pleaded the Fifth Amendment when asked about Klan activities at a Committee hearing.

J. Robert Jones, North Carolina grand dragon of the Klan, would not say what office Mars held — or even confirm that he belonged to the organization.

"You won't find out from me and you won't find out from any other member of the Klan," said Jones, who also lives in Granite Quarry.

Jones said Mars moved to Granite Quarry and began working as an auto mechanic after retiring from the U.S. Air Force after 20 years as a military policeman.

Honeycutt said Mrs. Mars told him Mars was working on a car in their yard when he entered the house and asked his wife to search for new jets for a carburetor. She left the bedroom and entered the kitchen.

Mrs. Mars said she heard a shot and saw her husband fall through the bedroom door into a hall. Officers found a 38-caliber revolver beside Mars, who died en route to a hospital.

Mrs. Mars said her daughter, Sandy, 12, was also in the house.

singer Peggy Lee, he wrote such hits as "Manana," "It's a Good Day" and "I Don't Know Enough About You." Barbour and Miss Lee were married March 8, 1943, and were divorced May 15, 1951.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: That letter signed "Outspoken" was the most vicious thing I've ever seen in print. The witch who wrote it said, "I wish you would stop telling us wives to thank God our husbands are still alive and to pick up the phone and invite a widow to a party."

Her closing blast was this: "If you husbandless females would be less self-pitying and not quite so boring, perhaps you wouldn't be so lonely."

According to the insurance companies, more and more women are outliving their husbands. I can promise "Outspoken" that if the shoe is ever on the other foot it will not feel very good.—VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

Dear Ann: "Outspoken" is right. Every word of her letter is true. I know because I'm a widow who had to learn the hard way that even your dearest friends will drop you after awhile. A husbandless woman is a social liability, a fifth wheel and a thorn in the side of the hostess.

When my husband died my home was filled with relatives and friends. I had to borrow chairs from the neighbors. It lasted three weeks. Two months later I called the telephone company to see if my phone was out of order. I couldn't believe that not a single person would have tried to call me in five days.

In India, Hindu widows used to throw themselves on the burning pyres at their husbands' funerals. It sounds grotesque but perhaps they knew what they were doing. Most widows are as good as dead the day they lose their husbands.—BITTER AND WITH GOOD REASON.

Dear Ann: "Outspoken" is wrong. My husband's death made a woman out of me. I never realized what a clinging vine I was until I became a widow.

When I was 43 I learned to drive. I enrolled in secretarial school and got myself a splendid job. Nobody has to find dates for me because I have more than I can handle.

I hate to be corny, Ann, but it's true—"Laugh and the world laughs with you. Cry and you streak your makeup." —CONTENT.

Dear Ann: Here's how I solved the widow problem: After I overheard my best friend say to her sister, "I'd like to invite Janice but who in the heck can I fix her up with?" I decided to free them of the burden of my presence. I sold everything and left town.

For 20 years I have told everyone that my husband is "permanently stationed elsewhere." (This is true. He is permanently stationed in the cemetery.)

I'm invited everywhere because no one considers me a threat.—G.W.

Dear Ann: Can a widow say just a few words to "Outspoken"?

If you and thousands of other married women only knew how many of your husbands made passes at us, you'd have eaten that letter instead of mailing it to Ann Landers.

I was 32 when I lost my wonderful husband. Within weeks of the funeral I received three poorly disguised propositions from the husbands of my closets friends and two out-and-out pitches.

Believe it or not, my sister's husband even offered to "help me get over my heartache by bringing 'a new interest' to my shattered life."

So my advice to you smug women who feel inclined to toss us a crumb now and then is this: "Save it. Some of us could get the whole loaf."

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Some Face-Saving Measures

"Please give us some encouragement on face-saving. I cannot get down to the weight my doctor recommended for me without looking simply frightful. My face is the first place I lose and it is already too thin. How about some isometric exercises, especially for around the mouth?"

Ida Jean Kain

Numerous dieters make this request, so here are face-saving measures: Protein, patience and exercise. The secret is to lose inches fast, lose pounds slowly.

TO AVOID a depleted look, bolster your daily diet with essential nutrients. Oftentimes at the start of a diet, the tissues are in a shoddy state of repair and some shoring up is needed nutrition-wise.

You will find it rewarding to have a complete protein food at each of the three daily meals. An uninterrupted supply of balanced amino acids, (protein) not just daily, but with each meal, has been shown to be of real importance. Have a protective pickup in the late afternoon—cheese, fruit or skim milk.

You may want to fortify your low-calorie fare with booster nutrients in the form of a protein-mineral-vitamin supplement. To keep calories low, the basis should be skim milk powder, fortified with replenishing nutrients. Be content to reduce at the leisurely rate of one-half pound a week, on 1500 protective calories a day.

Exercise plays a beauty role, for it stirs circulation and tones the whole system. In fact, mild, regular exercise is as important as limiting calories. Walking is a splendid conditioner.

THE BEST routine facial exercise is chewing. In each meal have some food which requires thorough chewing. If back teeth are missing, have them replaced, for a full complement of teeth supports the mouth and jaw.

Sanford Bennett, in an old book entitled "Old Age, Its Cause and Prevention," recommended this facial toner: Insert a finger at each corner of your mouth. Alternately pull and release, resisting with the lips as you pull strongly with fingers. Do this twice daily, five times at each session.

"This exercise will speedily strengthen the encircling mouth muscles. Any drooping or sagging will disappear," he prom-

Police Seek Bridgeport's 2nd Firebug

BRIDGEPORT, Ohio (AP)—This Ohio River town evidently has a firebug on its hands for the second time in as many years.

Three places broke out in flames Saturday. One was damaged too heavily—$20,000 worth—to yield immediate evidence of arson, but the others were held to minor loss and presence of railroad flares indicated they had been deliberately set.

The major damage was at the Freter Building, a three-story structure. There were no injuries.

Within the same block and within 10 minutes of that fire, another was spotted at a vacant building formerly an American Legion hall.

And fire burned itself out in a wood pile at Scott Lumber Co.—where a $50,000 fire about a year ago was attributed to arson.

Only about a month ago, an abandoned Baltimore & Ohio Railroad depot burned to the ground here.

A young man convicted of setting the lumberyard blaze and other fires last year was released from prison about six weeks ago.

Authorities, including state fire marshal's investigators, said they're seeking him again.

Cincinnati Man Held For Shotgun Murder

CINCINNATI (AP)—William Cunningham, 49, was held today on a second degree murder charge as the result of a shooting early Sunday.

Police said Cunningham, of Cincinnati, surrendered shortly after Robert Smith, 37, Cincinnati, was felled by a shotgun blast. Officers said the two men had quarreled.

Tobacco Sales Slated To Go Over $3 Million

RIPLEY, Ohio (AP)—Sales at the Ripley Tobacco Market was expected to top $3 million today.

Buyers paid $2,872,704.28 for 4,385,064 pounds of tobacco through Friday in ten days of auctions. The average price was $65.51 a hundredweight.

Cart Driver Killed

HAMILTON, Ind. (AP)—An Ohioan driving a horse-drawn cart was killed in a weekend traffic accident. Noah J. Schwartz, 60, of Edon, Ohio, perished when an automobile struck the car on Ind. 427 east of here.

Market Leveled In $600,000 Fire

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—A Pangle's Master Market was destroyed early today, overwhelmed by a fire that was visible from several miles away.

Ray Pangle, general manager of the Lima - based grocery chain, estimated damage at $600,000. He said destroyed stock represented about $450,000 of the loss.

Two men were in the store when the fire broke out. They tried unsuccessfully to put out the fire, which apparently started in a fuse panel, Pangle said. There were no injuries.

This was the third Pangle's Market to burn here in three years. The other two were demolished about a year apart.

Little Old For Draft

CHICAGO (AP)—The Suburban Forest Park draft board apparently is doing its best to keep from calling in recently married men. But they apparently overdid it when they sent a notice to William Sianis ordering him to appear for induction. Sianis is 70 years old.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Gals: During the holidays, when many people do a lot of entertaining, I wonder if they realize how much easier—and less expensive—it is to give parties on two consecutive nights, rather than to have them a couple of weeks apart?

Since you have given the house a good cleaning before the first party, all you have to do is put it back in order.

If you have bought fresh cut flowers, they will still be fine for the second night—there's a savings of 100 per cent!

You probably bought a variety of salad greens, and used only part of each kind—plus parsley (and who ever uses a whole bunch at one time?), etc.

If you are serving a casserole, make twice as much as you need for the first party, and save half of it for the second.

Of, if you're planning on having a big turkey or ham dinner, get large ones and have a cold, buffet dinner the second night.

Sure, you may be tired after giving two parties in a row, but I'll bet you'll thank yourself for trying it this way when you realize how much time, energy (less cleaning, and just one trip to the grocery store), and money you saved.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: To remove water stains from the glass wall and door in the shower, I use a soap-filled pad dipped in white vinegar, and scrub away.

M.F.H.

DEAR HELOISE: I have a suggestion regarding belt backing that peels and cracks. Why not use iron-on mending tape that comes in various colors?

It can be cut to fit and ironed on. To be sure the edges won't come loose and curl after repeated washings, I also sew it on the sewing machine.

MRS. DON GOETZ.

DEAR HELOISE: Clean newspapers, spread under the carpet where the floor is rough, sure helps prevent wear and tear on the rug.

READER

DEAR HELOISE: Instead of rummaging through your kitchen drawer for small rubber bands, put them on an empty spool of thread.

It works very well, and you'll always have a rubber band handy when you need it.

MRS. DAVID WOLFE.

DEAR HELOISE: I'm 11 years old.

I do odd jobs around the house.

Bringing Up A Family

By Dr. GARRY MYERS

Excess Of Toys Can Create Problems

Recently we noted that the young child who receives many toys all at once may not be very careful with them; they seem to have value to him in proportion to the number he receives. Furthermore, having so many playthings all at once tends to make the Dr. Garry Myers youngster scatterbrained.

On Christmas Day, many a little child is over-excited with so many toys. He hardly knows which one to play with first. He may handle one for a moment and hasten to another and another, worried that he can't use them all at once.

IN FLITTING from one toy to another so fast and often, how is he to practice in concentration? How is the child to gain useful skills and abiding satisfaction from so many toys heaped upon him all at once?

In the few shopping days left before Christmas you might aim not to lavish too many playthings on your youngster. Already there may be an exorbitant number on hand for him. Nor can you easily limit the number he may receive from grandparents and other persons.

Looking forward to Christmas Day, consider spiriting away some of his many toys after he has seen them. It even might be well with the child under four or five not to have him see for several days or weeks some of these toys.

It would be wonderful if a few could be kept in store to be brought out for him during various times throughout the year.

ON SEEING your youngster excited over so many playthings on Christmas Day, you might be able to quiet him down before too long by reading to him, going walking with him outdoors, or attracting him to put together some simple puzzles or simpler blocks.

If there are several young children in the family, the excitement of the day and the quick shifting of each child's attention and activity can pose increasing problems. Before long there may be considerable contention and quarrelling.

These problems may still grow greater if aunts, uncles and cousins have come to spend Christmas with the family. Suppose a number of neighbor children drop in to see the toys and play with them. It is certainly no time for the radio or TV to be turned on.

Often Christmas Day is a hard one for young children, even for the whole family; and usually hardest of all for the mother. Worn and weary from days and weeks getting ready for Christmas, she must almost reach the breaking point before the end of this day.

DAD SHOULD be at his best on this holiday. He could supervise the activities of the children and require a quiet period late in the afternoon.

Following Christmas is at least a week when the school children will be home, usually the most trying week of the year for Mother, especially if the weather is bad and the children must be indoors. Some careful planning by the parents is very desirable.

My bulletins, "The Child Who Doesn't Concentrate," "Fathers Are Parents, Too," and "The Nervous Child," may be secured by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Couple Honest Guys Are Duly Awarded

WELLINGTON, Australia (R)—An honest citizen found one-half of a one pound ($2.80) note, and handed it in to police. A few weeks later, another citizen arrived at the police station to turn in the other half he had found.

As there was no claimant, police changed the torn note into two 10 shilling notes (each worth $1.40), and gave one to each.

Inmates In Florida

Now Go To 'College'

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — You can now go to college while in prison in Florida.

At least, the first college course to be offered to inmates of any of the state's 37 correctional institutions is beginning this year.

Gulf Coast Junior College will offer Psychology 201 to prisoners at the state road camp in Bay County. The course will be taught by a regular college instructor in the late afternoon after the men have finished the day's work.

Camp officials and inmates requested the course for prisoners who had finished the secondary school program at the institution.

"We believe the program will be of benefit to both the men at the institution and the society which they eventually will rejoin," Dr. Richard Morley, Gulf Coast president said.

The East Liverpool Potters continued to break down in the home stretch and victory slipped through their fingers once again in the fourth quarter Saturday night, with Alliance rallying for a 59-52 decision.

The loss was the Potters' third in a row. Some 1,100 fans watched the seesaw battle at Memorial Auditorium.

COACH Frank Chan's team had owned a seven-point lead at halftime after a hot first half.

East Liverpool showed improvement Saturday over Friday's sluggish performance at Warren, but Alliance had a little more spunk off the blackboards.

Both teams failed to come with any patterned offense, with individual ability accounting for the scoring.

Winters Nets 20 In Loss

THE POTTERS shot almost 50 per cent in the first half, making 15 of 31 attempts to take a 33-26 lead to the lockerroom at intermission.

The second half showed only nine field goals in 31 attempts as Alliance cut the lead to three by the third quarter, 43-40, then took the lead with 3:31 remaining in the contest on Jim Brabson's two foul shots, 50-49.

A goal by Dan Ferguson with 3:13 to go made it 52-49, but Vern Smith closed the gap to 52-51 with 2:22 remaining.

Brabson hit again and Smith made a foul as the score stood 54-52 in favor of Alliance before points for the seven-point advantage.

THE SCORING of Chuck Winters gave the Potters the 33-26 bulge at halftime, with the senior co-captain dropping in 16 points in the first two periods. He made eight of 17 shots the first half, but scored only four points in the last two periods on two field goals. He shot only six times in doing so.

Winters emerged as the Potters' leading scorer for the second straight night with 20 points. He scored 17 in a loss to Warren the night before. His best quarter Saturday was the second when he dropped in 10 point Al Thigpen tallied the last five VERN SMITH, slowed by the flu all week, played most of the game and netted 14 points. Jimmy Jones hit for 10 markers.

Ed Osley, who couldn't miss for the Aviators in the first period, wound up with 21 points to lead Alliance to its second straight victory. Osley canned 10 points in the first quarter.

Thigpen followed Osley with 17 points, while Brabson added 16.

Over all, the Potters shot 38 per cent, making 24 of 62 attempts. Alliance took 78 shots and made 25 for 32 per cent. Jim Jones led the Potters on the backboards with 14, while Smith picked off 10.

THE FIRST quarter, which ended 18-16 in East Liverpool's favor, saw the score tied six times.

After an 18-18 tie to open the second period, East Liverpool stayed in front until halftime and got a big lift with four seconds to go in the half when Dick Witherow entered the game, grabbed a rebound under the Potter basket and scored. He was fouled as the buzzer sounded and converted for a three-point play which turned a four-point advantage into a seven-point lead.

Alliance went on to outscore the home team 14-10 in the third quarter as turnovers hurt the Potters.

Packers Crush Colts; Sayers Scores 6 TD's For Bears

Hornung Tallies Five Touchdowns

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

Vince Lombardi's hunch turned Paul Hornung loose on a five-touchdown spree in Sunday's National Football League power struggle at Baltimore but it was a right guess by Green Bay linebacker Dave Robinson that turned the corner for the Packers.

Hornung, given a reprieve by Coach Lombardi after languishing on the bench for two weeks, responded with an offensive binge that vaulted Green Bay past the crippled Colts 42-27 and into the lead in the NFL's Western Division stretch run. A defensive gem by Robinson, however, provided the momentum as the Packers all but shattered Baltimore's title hopes.

The loss dropped the Colts' one-half game behind Green Bay and one-half length ahead of Chicago, which stayed alive by smashing San Francisco 61-20 as rookie flash Gale Sayers bolted for six touchdowns. The Packers can wrap it up by beating the 49ers in next Sunday's finale, regardless of how the Baltimore-Los Angeles and Chicago-Minnesota games turn out.

The Rams upended Cleveland's Eastern Conference champions 42-7; the Vikings beat Detroit 29-7; the New York Giants topped Washington 27-10 and the Philadelphia Eagles trounced Pittsburgh 47-13 in Sunday's other games. Dallas whipped St. Louis 27-13 Saturday.

Robinson, a third-year pro from Penn State, came up from the big play for Green Bay in the final minute of the first half.

The Johnny Unitas-less Colts trailed 14-13 but were driving for a go-ahead touchdown behind reserve quarterback Gary Cuozzo. With the ball on the Green Bay 2, Cuozzo dropped back and lofted a flat pass in the direction of fullback Jerry Hill.

But Robinson, anticipating the pass, drifted to his left, reached up and picked it off — then raced 87 yards to the Baltimore 10. Bart Starr fired a TD pass to Boyd Dowler on the next play, boosting the Packers' halftime hulge to 21-13 and Hornung picked up the pieces.

The three-time NFL scoring king ran for three touchdowns and tallied on 50 and 65-yard pass-run plays from Starr. The over-all performance gave Hornung a club record for TDs in a single game.

Until Lombardi gave him the green light against the Colts, Hornung had scored only three touchdowns and had lost his starting job to Elijah Pitts. "It was a hunch — but Hornung's a pressure player," the coach said of his decision to start the eight-year veteran Sunday.

With Unitas on crutches — result of a mangled knee inflicted by the blitzing Bears last weekend — and Cuozzo slowed by a shoulder injury in the second half, the Colts' attack couldn't keep pace with Hornung and Starr, who completed 10 of his 17 pass attempts for 222 yards. Cuozzo hit on 20 of 38 for 212 yards and one touchdown.

Sayers shocked San Francisco with a one-man show that set a single-game NFL mark of 336 yards rushing, receiving and returning kicks. His six touchdowns gave him a total of 21 for the year — one more than the league record set by Baltimore's Lenny Moore last season and matched by Cleveland's Jim Brown this year.

The rookie from Kansas carried nine times for 113 yards, caught two passes for 89 and returned five kicks for 134, topping by five yards the mark set by Wally Triplett of Detroit against Los Angeles in 1950.

Sayers scored on an 80-yard screen pass from Rudy Bukich, an 84-yard punt return and jaunts of 1, 7, 21 and 50 yards from scrimmage. That brought his league-leading point total to 126, two short of the rookie record established in 1950 by the Lons' Doak Walker.

Roman Gabriel sparked the Rams' upset of Cleveland by tossing five TD passes and running for a sixth score. The Rams held Jim Brown to 20 yards in 13 carries while winning their third in a row. Tommy McDonald caught three Gabriel scoring strikes on plays that covered 46, 42 and 43 yards.

Minnesota snapped a four-game losing streak as Fran Tarkenton fired two first-half TD passes, Fred Cox booted two long field goals and Ed Sharockman scored on a 40-yard interception return.

Earl Morrall hit Homer Jones with a pair of scoring bombs, good for 74 and 72 yards, in the Giants' victory at Washington, which kept them in second place in the East. The Giants can clinch a berth in the NFL Playoff Bowl at Miami if they get by Dallas next Sunday.

Philadelphia defenders intercepted nine Pittsburgh passes, running three back for touchdowns, in the Eagles' one-sided victory. The loss was No. 11 for the Steelers in 13 games, their worst record in 21 years.

Steel Reports Order Boosts

CLEVELAND (AP) — High consumption is shifting steel user emphasis from inventory reduction to procurement of new tonnage, Steel Magazine said today.

The rising trend in orders for steel is carrying national production upward, according to the metal working weekly.

Estimated output of 2,140,000 net tons of steel for ingots and castings in the week ended Dec. 11 was the highest since the week ended Oct. 16.

Steel said this is one per cent over the 2,119,000 tons produced in the week before.

"It explains why inventories built up as a strike hedge are no longer considered a big problem," Steel said. "And prospects for continued high consumption explain the need to restart the flow of steel from mills."

The Product — A new, extra-hard polyurethane floor enamel. The Manufacturer's Claim — That this synthetic resists scuffs, scrapes, wear, water, soap, gasoline, oils, detergents and temperature changes; that it can be restored to its original color with a damp mop; and that it can be used on wood, metal or concrete surfaces, indoors and out.

The Product — A humidifier that can be utilized by any furnace utilizing 8-inch ducts.

The Manufacturer's Claim — That the humidifier's evaporating surface is made of foam plastic inside a stainless steel housing and that it employs a new air scoop design which assures maximum efficiency of air passing through the unit.

Continued heavy usage is causing some consumer concern about a tightening of supplies after Jan. 1, and their concern is being expressed on the order books of mills.

"One user of sheets has gone on mill books for six months requirements, nearly double his normal needs," according to Steel.

Steel said the new order rate at one mill is 30 per cent above that of a month ago.

Scrap metal continues to develop new strength piecewise, said the metal working weekly, which estimates that the price on No. 1 melting scrap rose another 67 cents a ton to $32 last week.

Relative stability is expected in the scrap market field the rest of this year, Steel said.

Bamboo Reigns

Furnishings Come To The Fore

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We may become homemakers in bamboo cages if the trend to bamboo furnishings continues.

Predictions are that before long we'll be fencing ourselves in with it, using it in new ways—around walls and even fanning it out from the center of the ceiling to walls for a bird-cage look.

Some years ago there were plastic wall coverings available that simulated the bamboo motif in third dimension, but it didn't hold up. The most effective substitutes have been the wallpapers and fabrics that carry the bamboo motif.

MEANWHILE, back at the town house and country ranch, bamboo chairs, step stools, whatnot shelves, occasional chairs, bookcases, chests and mirrors framed in bamboo are creeping into every room of the house.

Bamboo and simulated versions of it provide "a tongue-in-cheek attitude toward decoration," in the opinion of interior designer Michael Greer, one reason for its popularity through the ages. "Its success now is due to people understanding that they should live among pieces of furniture that are comfortable and interesting as well as appropriate."

Greer uses it because he enjoys the light-hearted effect that even one piece of bamboo offers a room.

It helps dispel overwhelming formality by its contribution of whimsy, he explains. He thinks of it as a wonderful art form that can fit ideally into informal rooms such as the family room, drawing room, sun room. It is ideal for a summer house. "A whole room of bamboo can be charming if one could get that much of it," he says.

One can spot it in antique shops from time to time. And there are pieces of the indestructible hollowed wood in many attics, but simulated bamboo wood carved to resemble it, provides the same sort of inspiration.

GREER puts color at the joints of simulated bamboo. He'll tint a white chair's joints red for a bright effect. He likes color with it—green, yellow or red on white or black and turquoise and black. Heavy textured or printed cottons make the best fabrics with it in his opinion.

Lamps that have been mounted from real Chinese vases provide more authenticity to simulated bamboo.

Its livability really needs no test. It has found a place in nearly every period. During the Louis periods, French craftsmen carved joints out of all kinds of wood to resemble bamboo.

The Prince of Wales (later George IV) imported great quantities of bamboo furniture from China, using lots of it at his seaside home, the famous Brighton Pavilion outside of London.

Later it became a museum and the bamboo was exhibited along with other furniture carved to resemble the Chinese bamboo pieces.

Elizabeth, was married Sunday for the third time, to Toronto radio announcer William Kemp. Lady Iris, 45, a great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, was married earlier to Maj. Hamilton J. O'Malley of the Irish Guards and Michael Bryan of Memphis, Tenn. Both marriages ended in divorce.

Decision Looms On Atom Facility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission is getting closer to a decision on where to locate its $280-million atom smasher.

Four-man teams have completed special inspections of the 85 sites still in the running, and are turning their reports over to the National Academy of Sciences.

The academy is to recommend five or six of the locations to the AEC.

An AEC spokesman said the academy recommendations aren't expected before the end of January.

MANILA (AP)—President Diosdado Macapagal has at last admitted defeat in his bid for re-election Nov. 9.

He said Saturday he will retire from political life at the end of his term Dec. 30.

Macapagal will be succeeded as chief executive of the Philippines by Ferdinand E. Marcos.

THIS SPLIT-LEVEL HOME, with arched portico, rubble stonework and shuttered diamond windows, has a distinctive early-American charm. Inside the modest shell there is a well-ordered plan with eight rooms on three levels, plus a cellar under the main level. Four bedrooms, two baths and a balcony occupy the upper level. The main floor features a through hall with both front and rear entrances. The kitchen is convenient not only to the dining room but also to the family room on the lower level. Plan HA424P was designed by architect Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N. Y. It contains 764 square feet on the main level, 859 on the bedroom level and 814 on the lower level, including garage.

Roads Need Protection During Bad Weather

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

With the approach of real winter weather, the seasoned home owner is well aware of the fact that there are certain measures which can be taken to insure a minimum of trouble next spring.

Porch and patio furniture is stored away, or at least turned over; delicate shrubs are sheathed in protective covering; attic windows and louvers are closed and sealed, and all is made ready for winter's onslaught.

There are, however, some places usually neglected which would do better with some of the attention that is normally only lavished on the immediate house. One of these is the driveway from the garage to the public road or street.

Actually, this link with the outside world is often forgotten. And while the car may be in perfect working condition, it is virtually useless unless it can be driven out to the plowed public road.

Home owners will find that a row of stakes driven into the edge of the garage roadway not only will save the lawn edges, but will be tremendous help in clearing a true path for the car.

They clearly indicate the straight or winding road and save random digging or plowing.

Another tremendous help in bad weather is the installation of snow fences along the side of a roadway — facing the weather side. Almost all localities have a direction from which the average bad snowstorm can be expected. A snow fence along this side will prevent drifts.

As a matter of fact, after several winters have passed, many a clear-thinking householder has planted shrubbery, which not only adds to the general planting scheme of his property, but also doubles in winter as a good shield for his paths and roads.

Demonstrations Given Sorenson's Approval

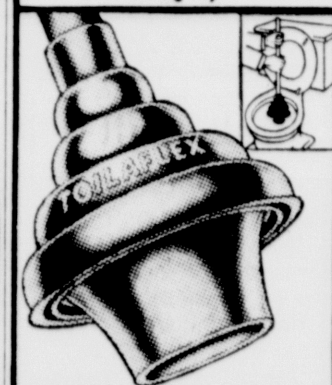

CLEVELAND (AP)—One of the late President John F. Kennedy's closest advisers says the political demonstrations of college students are "much better than complacency."

Theodore C. Sorenson made the statement in a news conference here Sunday, saying it was better that the students vent energy that way than "on football and party raids."

However, he said he regretted that a few extremists were interested in publicity for themselves through participation in demonstrations. Sorenson was here to speak at the 119th annual meeting of the Fairmount Temple.

In 1783, the Massachusetts Supreme Court outlawed slavery because of the words in the state Bill of Rights that "all men are born free and equal."

Gains Shown By Floor Tile

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

It is doubtful whether even the manufacturers of resilient floor tiles realized the full potential of their product some years ago.

When this type of floor covering was introduced, it seemed likely that its use would be confined to special rooms in the house, such as the kitchen and recreation area.

Today, thanks to a wide variety of tile ingredients and adhesives, resilient floor tiles are being used everywhere in the house, above and below grade, and even in such formal locations as living rooms.

In addition to the many brilliant colors and designs on individual tiles, there are numerous decorative patterns that can be worked out by placement of the tiles according to a previously prepared layout.

Some of these patterns lean towards the sophisticated side for luxury homes, some accentuate gaiety for brightening up playrooms and some are in the form of games that can be played by children and adults alike.

The growing popularity of floor tiles over the years can be attributed as much to the ease of application as to any other cause.

Home owners who wouldn't think of wrestling with large rolls of flooring found themselves taking a chance with tiles because they were so much easier to handle.

And with good reason. If certain fundamentals are observed, a good job can be done by anyone — even a person completely lacking in do-it-yourself abilities.

It is wise to buy the adhesive for installations from the same dealer from whom you purchase the tiles.

He then can give you the proper type of cement for the tiles you have selected. This is important, since the kind which works well with asphalt and vinyl asbestos, for example, is not suitable for such tiles as rubber, solid vinyl cork and linoleum.

It is always smart, too, to tell the dealer whether the tiles are being installed on concrete or grade or concrete below grade and what the general conditions are, as some projects call for special adhesives to suit special conditions.

Solution Offered For Correcting 'Sweating' Tank

Question: Every winter I have the same problem. The water tank in back of our bathroom bowl sweats heavily, then drips and leaves a pool of water on the floor. This has happened for three straight years now in an old house we bought.

We have steam heat. I don't remember it ever happening in our previous house, which was heated by hot air. Can you tell me why this is taking place and what I can do about it?

Answer: This type of condensation occurs when warm, moist air hits the cold surface of the water tank. There are a number of solutions. The simplest is to install a drip tray under the tank to catch the water. These drip trays can be purchased in most hardware stores and are simply attached to the tanks without the use of any tools. But the disadvantage is that the tray must be emptied periodically or, if too, will spill water on the floor.

Sometimes a fabric covering over the tank will prevent condensation from forming. So will a window exhaust fan, since the moist air will be pulled out of the bathroom before it settles on the cold tank.

But perhaps the best solution is to have a mixing valve connected to the hot and cold water, rather than cold water, will flow into the tank after each flushing.

The surface of the tank then will not be cold enough to encourage condensation. There are a number of other solutions, including a new kind of water tank inside it with a space between the two.

As for the reason why all this did not occur when you owned a house which was heated with hot air: this heating method, when not combined with a humidifying device, can sometimes result in too-dry air, which is not likely to assist condensation.

But this is only a guess. It could merely be that your other house was not as "tight" as this one, permitting the moist, warm air to escape without settling on cold surfaces.

Caution Against Fires Urged

Accidents never take a holiday, not even at Christmas.

Fire hazards mount during the busy season, but can be kept at a minimum if the following suggestions are observed:

1. — Pick a fresh tree and saw off the butt at an angle an inch or more above the original cut. Stand the tree in water all through the holiday season. So called "flameproof" preparations are not always effective.
2. — Check your electric light wires for frayed insulation, loose connections and broken sockets. Candles with open flame should never be used. It is unsafe to let the Christmas tree lights stay on after retiring or when leaving the home.

3. — Use only non-combustible decorating material. However, if decorations are combustible, use approved "flameproofing" materials.
4. — Discard (outside the home) gift wrapping promptly. Due to the large amount of paper, it is unsafe to burn in the fireplace.
5. — Be careful not to smoke or use open flame — matches, cigarette lighter — near the tree.

For the safety of your family throughout the coming year, this also is a good time to review your family exit routes in the event of fire.

Winter Grips U.S. Areas

By The Associated Press

A blanket of wintry weather — snow, rain, sleet and fog — stretched across the continent today.

A sleet storm paralyzed portions of the Dakotas and western Minnesota, knocking out telephone communications and isolating some communities without power.

Snow, rain and fog snarled traffic and caused many accidents.

A Greyhound bus en route to New Orleans went off a highway during a rainstorm Sunday near Pensacola, Fla., killing four persons and injuring 19.

An Air Canada four-engine turbo-prop revved its engines just before it was to take off from O'Hare International Airport in Chicago for Toronto, Ont., Sunday. The plane skidded off the runway and became stuck in mud. The 71 passengers were transferred to another plane.

A pilot apparently became lost in the fog near White Plains, N.Y., Sunday and was killed when his plane crashed.

Snow fell on the ice-coated eastern section of North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. said at least 20,000 wire breaks were reported in South Dakota Sunday. The company said more than 2,000 telephone poles had snapped under the ice loads. The company sent 520 workers from four states to repair the damage.

A telephone company spokesman reported 40 per cent of the exchanges in the Fargo, N.D., district were out of order Sunday night.

He said more than 80 North Dakota towns were affected by broken lines and poles and that it would be Wednesday before service is back to normal. Nearly 300 men were reported working to restore communications.

Air traffic was stopped at Friendship International Airport in Baltimore for 12 hours Sunday. Shipping in the port of Baltimore was paralyzed, and only one of the nine ships due to sail departed. Highway travel was hazardous because of thick fog. Light freezing rain and sleet fell in northeastern New York state and 22 inches of snow accumulated in Albany. Roads were slick, but traffic accidents were light.

Only 349 Rebels Due Dominican Army Duty

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Less than 400 of the troops who joined the Dominican rebels will be taken back into the armed forces, high officials say.

Rebel military chiefs listed 1,200 men they said were eligible to rejoin the regular forces under the Inter-American peace formula. It was learned that 349 of these were paid off and dismissed as ineligible over the weekend. The sources said that soon after joining the rebels last April, many troops returned voluntarily to their units. Others died in the fighting, some deserted, some were cashiered and a number had already retired from the regular forces, the informants said.

Sukarno Raps Drive On Communist Group

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno today denounced the campaign against the Indonesian Communist party — the PKI — and said it leads to the arrest and killing of innocent people.

The army has been cracking down on the PKI since the attempted coup Oct. 1. The Communists were accused of masterminding the attempt.

Living Room 'Storage' Requires Elegant Note

Storage, storage everywhere — that's what every home owner wants most.

Even in the living room, storage cabinets and closets are desirable for all the miscellany used in the room — music equipment and albums, books, cards and games, ash trays, folding tables and chairs, magazines, movie and slide projectors, coasters and cocktail napkins — to name just a few.

But, of course, living room storage needs living room elegance. It must be both architectural and decorative: architectural to fit into the room's concept of space and overall design, decorative to complement furnishings chosen for the room.

ONE EXCELLENT approach is to work storage around a window area where it can make use of corners and under-window space while lending importance to the windows.

For example, a picture window or a row of large windows centered in a wall often look a bit detached from the rest of the room. Wall areas surrounding it are sometimes hard to handle and curtaining treatments inevitably result in ordinary draw draperies. Yet, with cabinets built under and on either side, the window area can become a highlight of the room.

The plan could develop like this: First, in each corner, build a closet. These closets should be floor-to-ceiling height to frame the windows properly and to make maximum use of space. Depth will depend on the size of the room as well as on contents intended for the storage closets.

Next, a unit of cabinets could be positioned directly under the window, built from floor to sill height and stretching from one corner closet to the other.

If the sill is quite low, 16 inches or so from the floor, the cabinet top can work also as a window seat. If the sill is at waist height, the cabinet top will do handsomely as a serving counter for buffet or snack service in the living room.

THE DESIGN of the storage units should be simple. The closets could be built of solid lumber panel boards, choosing a straight-grained wood like western hemlock and carrying it on to adjacent wall surfaces. Closet doors constructed of panel boards should have concealed hinges and either touch latches or an unobtrusive door pull.

The bank of cabinets under the window can either repeat the hemlock or pick up a furniture wood from living room tables. Dark-stained mahogany or walnut teams well with the shell beige of hemlock. And to make these lower cabinets even more interesting, the door faces could be covered with a textured fabric like linen or burlap.

For the window treatment, a number of things could be used: shutters to match the hemlock, sheer curtains that draw to either side, Roman shades, or matchstick blinds.

Mistakes By People Blamed For Voting Machine Errors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Machines may not make mistakes, but people may — and use of voting machines is not guaranteed against errors in elections, though they do help.

That view comes today from a survey following up a recount of votes in the Cleveland mayor's election.

Mayor Ralph S. Locher won the recount, gaining a few votes over challenger Carl Stokes, a Negro state representative, over the margin given him in the first tabulation.

Few of the errors discovered in the recount, of both machine votes and paper ballots, were mathematical, said Ray C. Miller, director of the Cuyahoga County Election Board.

Most of the changes on paper ballot tabulations resulted from what he called "interpretation of voter intent." He explained that some ballots were smeared, marked with an "x" extending outside the printed box or marked with different types of check. Various interpretations could be placed on the voter's intent in some of these cases.

Voting machines eliminate this problem. But mistakes still can be made.

Miller reported that in some voting machine precincts, it was discovered that poll workers had unintentionally transposed the figures read from the machines.

Cleveland has 123 voting machines among its 1,182 precincts. The rest of Cuyahoga County has 129 machines among 1,347 precincts. Polling places not served by machines still use paper ballots.

Twenty of Ohio's 88 counties use voting machines and Secretary of State Ted W. Brown reports virtually no errors in their operation, except for the occasional transposition of figures when they are recorded on election forms by poll workers who read totals shown on the machines.

Sweeney Blasted For Criticism Of Ohio Department

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for the Ohio Office of Opportunity lashed out at U.S. Rep. Robert E. Sweeney, D-Ohio, today for "telling a series of malicious, unmitigated lies."

Dr. Donald Beatty, deputy director of the Ohio office referred in a prepared statement to remarks attributed to the congressman last Thursday "in several Ohio newspapers."

Sweeney was quoted by Beatty as saying, among other things, that Ohio Office of Opportunity is being used by the administration of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes "to create a personal patronage machine to put some very prominent Republicans in plush jobs."

Beatty said the office personnel was selected "solely on the basis of qualifications and is second to none in the nation in accordance with accepted personnel standards established by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington."

The deputy director also denied allegations by Sweeney that the Ohio office is "full of coordinators of programs which are pretty much non-existent." Beatty called that charge "ridiculous" and said the Ohio office has been "repeatedly praised" for its effectiveness.

He added that Sweeney is "either misinformed, or is grossly ignorant of the facts concerning the operation of the Ohio Office of Opportunity."

Students Have Grown Accustomed To Dog

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Nobody knows for sure whether his name is Dan or Sam, but students and workers at Valdosta have grown accustomed to the bulldog that calls the campus home.

The bulldog adopted the students four years ago, and he's been there ever since. He begs his meals from students at the Student Center or construction crews on the college building program. He enjoys air conditioning at the student center, wallows on the carpets in the girls' dorm and chases arrows in the college archery classes.

British Girl, 21, Finds Suitor Via Glass Bottle

WOMBELI, England (AP) — Marjorie Fowler, 21, plans to fly 10,000 miles to meet a prospective suitor who found her in a bottle.

Marjorie put a "please write me" message in a bottle she was packing at the glass factory where she works. A 26-year-old pharmacist in Perth, Australia, John Vettler, found the message and replied.

The correspondence flourished, and John suggested that Marjorie fly out to meet him. He forwarded 450 pounds ($1,260) for the plane fare.

Midland Councilmen Due At Air Pollution Sessions

Two members will represent Midland Borough Council at a meeting of the State Air Pollution Commission Jan. 25 in Harrisburg.

The delegation was decided on at Council's session Thursday at the Borough Building. Floree J. Aquino, Region 3 Air Pollution Control director who attended the meeting, said he "will recommend that the commission present the Midland Plant of Crucible Steel Co. with a 30-day notice to provide a satisfactory plan to control air pollution caused by its manufacturing processes."

Aquino also asked that two members of council be assigned to attend the meeting with him. Council will appoint two members to accompany Aquino. Robert McReary of the Duquesne Light Co. presented William Vinovich, president of Council, with an inscribed gavel "for installing vapor mercury lights in Midland."

McReary told Council that Midland is one of 20 out of 140 municipalities in the state to install this type of lighting system. He also said: "Midland is one of the first in Beaver County and is a leader in the county in this respect."

Council appointed Ray Stowitsky to the police Civil Service Commission to fill the remaining term vacated by the late James Reed.

Granville Kester, representative of Michael Baker Jr., Inc., reported that construction work on 3rd St. and 12th St. is progressing satisfactorily. He reported that the work on 3rd St. is expected to be completed the early part of next year.

Officers Cite Man As Auto Hits Building

A Waterford Park employee was cited by police in a one-car mishap early Sunday morning after he failed to negotiate a curve at Harvey Ave. and Elizabeth St. and his auto struck a lumber company's building.

Floyd Hill, 52, was charged with driving without an operator's permit following the crash timed at 2:40 a.m. Hill was ordered to pay court costs on the charge when arraigned before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff. He produced a Louisiana operator's permit.

Auxiliary Clears 2 Gift Proposals

Gifts for the department child package fund for the adopted children of Scotland School and for the veterans at Deshon Hospital in Butler were approved by the South Side American Legion auxiliary Friday at a meeting in the post home at Hookstown. The auxiliary announced that the annual Christmas party will be held Saturday at 6:30 p.m. The food will be provided, but each member is asked to bring a covered dish. Members are also asked to bring gifts to be distributed to the children by Santa Claus.

The auxiliary voted to hold its card parties on the second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Christmas gifts were exchanged. Lunch was served by Mrs. Mary Belich. The next meeting will be Jan. 14 with Mrs. Leona Trimble presiding.

Deputies Check Entry At Salem District Firm

LISBON — An assortment of miscellaneous items was stolen Saturday night from Industrial Mining and Engineering Co. on Route 45 south of Salem.

The sheriff's office received a report of missing items at 9:36 a.m. Sunday. It was suspected that burglars gained entrance by breaking a 12-x-6-inch window in the furnace room and then proceeded to the rest of the building.

Among the items taken were five or six six-volt batteries, two .22 caliber pistols, one .22 caliber magnum rifle, and a set of 8.50-x-14 tires. Deputy Howard Gray is investigating.

Hancock Inducts 11

Floyd Hill, 52, was charged with driving without an operator's permit following the crash timed at 2:40 a.m. Hill was ordered to pay court costs on the charge when arraigned before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff. He produced a Louisiana operator's permit.

Hill told officers he was headed west on Harvey Ave. when he missed the curve and his car continued straight ahead, damaging the building, garage door and bushes and fence at the Adkins Lumber Co.

No one was injured in three other crashes over the weekend, police reported.

A strange mishap in which the driver of an apparently damaged auto drove off without stopping was reported to police Saturday.

Robert W. Helman, 28, of 1174 Allen Ave., driver of a milk truck owned by Beverly Farms, Inc., of Alliance, told officers he was headed south on Lisbon St. near W. 8th St.

Helman said the unidentified motorist pulled in front of him and he hit the rear end of the car, which carried Ohio plates. The auto stalled so Helman said he gave it a shove, but when the engine started the autoist drove away without halting.

A mishap at 3:12 p.m. Saturday on E. 5th St. near Crook Alley involved cars operated by Milton Lee Fowler, 31, of 818 Riverview St. and Emmett L. Pelley Jr., 42, of 18th St. Heights, Wellsville.

Fowler said he was pulling from a parking space and Pelley said he was pulling around a truck, which was double parked, when the mishap happened.

William K. Wooley, 210 Virginia Ave., Chester, reported to police Friday that the front bumper of his convertible was damaged about 10:30 p.m. Friday while parked on Dresden Ave. near W. 7th St.

Duke Lays Strong Bid For Top Spot

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There are plenty of pretenders today for the title of national collegiate basketball champion which appears shaky in the grasp of UCLA.

Heading the list are the Duke Blue Devils with Bob Verga and Jack Maring who routed the two-time national champions on successive nights last Friday and Saturday, 82-66 and 94-75.

Right behind are All-America Cazzie Russell and the Michigan Wolverines, ranked second to UCLA in last week's Associated Press poll.

Then there's St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, Vanderbilt, Minnesota, Kansas, Providence, Bradley, Iowa, Kentucky, Wichita, Dayton, Temple, Princeton, Syracuse as well as Connecticut Colorado State U., Utah, Brigham Young, San Francisco, Oklahoma City, Texas A&M, Chicago Loyola, Western Kentucky, DePaul and Boston College.

UCLA, which suffered two straight defeats for the first time in years, still must be reckoned with as the team picked before the season opened to win an unprecedented third straight national crown.

"Every team plays poorly away from home," said UCLA Coach Johnny Wooden after the disasters against Duke. He referred to Duke's upset on the road by South Carolina last Monday and could have included Michigan's road defeat by Wichita last Wednesday.

UCLA will be back home in Los Angeles this week ready to show there's a lot of life in the old boy yet. The unbeaten Kansas Jayhawks, 5-0 and No. 7 in The AP poll, get the chance Friday to test their championship aspirations. On Saturday the Cincinnati Bearcats will get their whack at the Bruins.

Kansas knocked St. John's of New York from the unbeaten ranks 61-55 Saturday while Cincinnati humbled South Dakota 112-66.

Michigan rebounded from its Wichita defeat by beating San Francisco 96-78 with Russell getting his career high 45 points. All but 10 of these came in the second half as Cazzie turned a close game at Chicago Stadium into a rout. The Wolverines are idle this week and are looking ahead to their meeting with Duke next week.

Duquesne beat Miami of Ohio 64-60 to win the Steel Bowl at Pittsburgh Saturday. Tennessee State took the K. C. Tourney at Portland, Ore., by whipping Idaho 104-93.

Duke, paced by Verga's 22 points and Maring's 23, at one time opened a 24-point lead over UCLA at 70-46. While that game at Charlotte wasn't exciting there were several close finishes.

Ron Hobson's basket in the last second gave Tennessee Tech a 79-77 victory over Canisius. Nebraska's Nate Branch tipped in a rebound to give the Cornhuskers a 70-68 victory over California. Tommy Campbell's 20-foot jump shot at the final buzzer gave Bradley an 81-80 squeeze over Oklahoma and Stan Felsing's four free throws in the last minute gave Columbia an upset 69-68 victory over Cornell.

Hatton Is Named Astro's Manager

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Paul Richards, who came to the Houston Astros as general manager in 1961 to build up the club, is on the outside looking in today, but he isn't bitter.

Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Astros, fired Richards Sunday and replaced Field Manager Luman Harris with Grady Hatton, manager of Houston's Oklahoma City farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Tal Smith, special assistant to Hofheinz, was named director of player personnel. Smith and Hatton will share Richards' former duties and the general manager title will be retired.

"The judge thinks that Grady and Tal can run the club better than our group," Richards said at a hurriedly called news conference set up by Hofheinz. "That's 100 per cent okay with me."

"It's his team. He wasn't satisfied with the progress of the team."

Richards said he first learned of the move about 1 p.m. Sunday but "you might say the judge (Hofheinz) and I had some long-distance communication of the minds."

"I called Eddie Robinson (Astros farm director) when I landed in Miami (from Venezuela) and in that way learned about Friday's press conference."

Hatton and Hofheinz had held a news conference Friday to announce that Hatton had turned down an offer to manage the Chicago White Sox. The White Sox denied any offer was made.

"After that (when he learned of that news conference) it was obvious," Richards said.

Hofheinz had high praise for Hatton and Smith. "They are two of baseball's brightest young men and I feel that the progress of the Astros on the playing field will be swifter with Grady and Tal in charge of the playing end of the game," he said.

Richards was given a three-year contract when he replaced Gabe Paul in 1961 as general manager. The contract was extended through 1970 last year.

Hofheinz indicated he would buy up Richards' contract.

Hatton was named Minor League Manager of the Year this year. He guided Oklahoma City to two Pacific Coast League titles in three years.

Junior Editors Quiz on LIFE JACKETS

QUESTION: Why do life jackets hold people up in water?

ANSWER: Pick up an empty glass, lift it up and down, and you will feel some weight. Now fill it with water and see how much heavier it feels, showing that water is much heavier than the air the glass originally contained. This is why a cork (upper left) bobs around on top of the water. Cork comes from the upper bark of the cork tree and is composed of millions of minute cells which contain nothing but air. These cells are like a mass of air bubbles with tough walls which keep the water out. Since it weighs only one-fifth as much as water, cork can't push the heavy water aside to sink down, and so rides lightly on top. Life jackets float and hold up the people to whom they are attached because compartments in them are filled with cork or another light substance, such as kapok, which acts in the same way. A collar of the floating material will hold the wearer's head up if in the water; but the arms of a life jacket are left free for swimming or handling boats, as shown in the picture. Small boats are required to carry at least one buoyant cushion or life jacket for each person aboard. It is a very good plan for young people to wear life jackets aboard small boats, especially when on open spaces of water.

FOR YOU TO DO: Press a cork bottle stopper down into a glass of water, then suddenly release it. See how quickly it bounces to the surface, proving its great buoyancy.

Union Urges Higher Pay, Price Curbs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders demanded today a bigger slice of the nation's wealth for workers, a federal curb on the prices of some key commodities, and a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits.

In resolutions certain to be gavelled to quick approval by about 1,000 delegates to the federation's 10th anniversary convention, AFL-CIO policymakers also rejected White House wage guidelines and called for bold federal policies to create jobs and boost consumer purchasing power.

"A faster rise in wages and fringe benefits is needed to broaden and strengthen the mass markets that are the foundation of the economy," one resolution said.

Federation leaders also suggested income tax cuts for low- and middle-income families, and elimination of taxes altogether for those under the government's poverty income level of $3,000 a year.

The effects on the economy of 1964 and 1965 tax cuts have "almost completely worn off," the proposed resolution said.

In recommending a 50 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, federation leaders said the base on which Social Security taxes are assessed should be increased from the present $6,600 to $15,000 a year, supplemented by extra money from the federal Treasury. The cost should not be charged to future generations of workers and employers, they declared.

Social Security benefits now average about $92 per month for a retired single worker and $137 for a married couple.

The recent 7 per cent increase barely covered the increased cost of living, the federation said.

AFL-CIO leaders said medical care benefits under Social Security—which do not go into effect until next July—should be improved and extended to surviving widows and children.

The federation blamed the outflow of private capital, rather than wage increases, for the U.S. balance-of-payments problem in foreign trade.

It said the federal government should restrict the investment of U.S. corporations overseas.

Delegates asked Congress to raise the minimum wage to $2 and include farm workers in its coverage.

Hazard Reported From Imported Plastic Coolers

NEW YORK (AP)—Health authorities in nearly a score of states are looking into reports that plastic drink coolers imported from Hong Kong contain contaminated water.

Sales of the coolers have been banned in six cities and three states. Many civic groups selling the novelties to raise funds spent the weekend getting them back from customers.

Discovery of germ-laden coolers in Arkansas set off the flurry across the nation. Arkansas authorities quarantined 500 boxes of the novelty sets.

No illness has been traced to the novelty coolers, said a spokesman for the communicable diseases center of the U.S. Public Health Service in Atlanta.

The product is a water-filled plastic ball or cube designed to chill drinks.

Algeria Leader Visits Moscow For Aid Talks

Boumedienne came to discuss continuance of Soviet aid to Algeria. A number of economic officials accompanied him.

Rhodes Raps OSU's Plans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The controversy over a proposed $300,000 president's mansion at Ohio State University rambled on Monday with indications the matter may not yet be settled.

Ohio State trustees approved construction of the big house by a 7-1 vote last Thursday, but since then there has been unfavorable reaction from Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Criticism has been strong from other quarters, too, with some officials noting that the Legislature would have to appropriate funds to operate the mansion—something the lawmakers may be hesitant to do.

Trustees decided after putting off action for several months to approve construction of the new residence for University President Novice G. Fawcett with donated funds. The board's newest member, Ohio Turnpike Commission Chairman James W. Shocknessy, cast the only dissenting vote.

The governor voiced his "regrets" over the decision in a letter his top aide, John M. McElroy, is sending out in reply to more than two dozen letters and telegrams of protest received by the governor's office.

McElroy described the home as "expensive" and said although only donated funds are to be used "there is widespread belief that tax funds are being employed." The governor's aide said persons desiring to protest further should address their remarks to university trustees.

The university's daily newspaper has come out against construction of the mansion. The newspaper called it "a blatant excess which the university cannot afford."
